

Berger Hospital Receives First Pledge

By SUE BOYER
Herald Staff Writer

Berger Hospital Administrator John E. Reid announced today that the first pledge from local industry has been received for the building project. The local PPG plant manager, J. M. Butler, notified the Board of Governors of Berger Hospital that the corporation was pledging a total of $7,500 over a two year period.

The hospital will receive $4,000 during 1974 and $3,500 the following year. Other local industries in the Berger serving area are asked to follow the example set by PPG.

Reid explained an estimated $1,750,000 building project referred to as Phase I will soon be under way to add and improve laboratory, radiology, emergency, surgery and pharmacy facilities and a central supply to the present structure. Bid proposals for the project will be sent out by the first of the year and the building is expected to begin in early spring.

The architect has completed plans for the $1.75 million project. The final blueprints will be ready for presentation to the Board of Governors by late December.

Money is available for the Phase I of the building renovation of the hospital according to Reid. This money has accumulated over the years since the hospital was built in 1929 and has been collected from revenue sharing bonds.

The new construction will be built at the end of an 80-foot corridor behind the north medical wing. Since the fastest growing areas of hospital care are emergency, X-ray and laboratory, these three structures will be built against outside walls for possible expansion in the future.

Circleville is the third fastest growing community in the state of Ohio. According to hospital statistics quoted by Reid, the local hospital is seeing more than 10,000 patients per year in the same amount of space as 2,000 patients have occupied in previous years.

Statistics also show an increase of 15 per cent in patients this year over last year's occupancy. The hospital ran full throughout the summer which is normally a slack season.

This past week, 49 medical-surgical patients were hospitalized in facilities designed to accommodate only 43. Six of the patients were placed in the hallways and Reid said the situation was not relieved until Thanksgiving morning. Such practices are against the safety and fire regulations.

A survey was recently conducted by Ernst and Ernst Inc., the third largest accounting firm in the United States. The survey showed that by 1975 the hospital would be running at 120 per cent capacity if additional space was not provided.

Such occupancy is, of course, impossible and if the situation is not changed, Reid said patients will be turned away in the near future.

Certain safety deficiencies will have to be corrected before standards are met with the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. The Joint Commission is a national organization that sets the standards for care of patients and surveys all hospitals in the United States before giving such accreditations.

Berger Hospital received full accreditation two years ago for the first time in history. Results have not been received from the last review of the commission. Reid stated that it is possible the hospital will be placed on a one-year probation to correct the deficiencies found by the examining team. A complete list of faults and deficiencies will be presented to the Board of Governors of the hospital.

Reid said the same situation which was found to be a deficiency in the last survey still exists. This situation is again the space problem. Far too many patients are treated in far too little space. The emergency room was also cited as a problem area. The area is still the same in the emergency room as it was at the time of the accreditation two years ago.

When the new addition is made to the hospital, it will be made to the most recent safety and fire regulations and standards. These standards have changed somewhat since the survey of the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals was made two years ago.

In looking at the local hospital facility in comparison to the other hospitals in the state, Berger offers its care for less money stated the hospital administrator. The average cost of a hospital room in Ohio is $49 while Berger's most expensive room is only $39.

The proposed addition of Phase I will take approximately a year and a half to construct. After Phase I is completed, a Phase II addition is projected when funds are available. Rough plans show Phase II beginning some two years after the completion of Phase I.

Phase II would add approximately 100 beds to the hospital and is expected to cost nearly $2 million. Again stress is placed on the need for industry to do its part.

The need is clearly evident for a fully specialized and equipped hospital for the people of Circleville and Pickaway County. The need will be more clearly evident in the future when the hospital is operating at complete capacity and must turn patients away stated Reid.

Schultz Urges Oil Independence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz says the United States will be better off if it plans its energy policy on the assumption it will never again receive oil from the Arab countries.

Although Arab oil would help in meeting both present and future energy needs, the United States can and should learn to get along without it, Shultz said.

"We have to have a program geared in the long run so others won't have us by the throat," he told reporters Monday. "If we don't take a lesson from this ... we're just crazy."

Shultz said the United States can avoid major economic damage if it diverts the energy shortage toward nonessential uses.

He indicated there probably would be some increased unemployment as a result of the energy shortages, but said private forecasts of an 8 per cent unemployment rate were too high.

He also indicated he felt the stock market, which declined 29 points Monday, was overreacting, saying it "seems to have gone wild on the subject."

Shultz said he didn't have any specific new proposals to recommend for easing the energy shortage, saying he was "not sounding off until I have a better view."

He has said in the past that allowing prices to rise would be one good way of reducing consumption, but he noted that Cost of Living Council Director John T. Dunlop is strongly opposed to this approach.

He said the administration has stepped up study of a proposed excess profits tax that would absorb windfall profits, that industries, such as the petroleum industry, might reap from the energy crisis. He said other proposals were under study as well.

Shultz returned Monday from what he called a productive meeting in Tours, France, of finance officials from West Germany, Great Britain, Japan, France and the United States to discuss world monetary reform.

He said the world energy crisis also was discussed but that there was no talk of a worldwide recession.

He said the United States made clear its opinion that the U.S. dollar was now properly valued in relation to other currencies.

said there was little excitement and no hysteria, adding that Monday's drop was nowhere near the percentage fall recorded in 1929.

"Years ago it would have been a panic with this sharp drop," said George Gwaldo, for 40 years one of the exchange's supervisors on the floor. "Today it was just a regular sell-off."

Volume was only moderately active at 19.83 million shares.

Since Oct. 26, when the market's recent slide began, analysts have attributed it mostly to oil shortages and energy fears.

Compounding energy fears Monday was the decision by the First National Bank of Chicago, the nation's 10th largest, to raise its prime rate to 9 3/4 per cent from 9 1/2 per cent.

Investors fear that energy shortages and high interest rates may contribute to a recession in 1974, brokers say.

Thunderstorms crackled across the South and parts of the Midwest today, and fog and drizzle dampened much of the midcontinent as unseasonable mildness persisted from the Plains to the Atlantic.

A tornado watch was in effect before dawn for the lower Mississippi Valley and parts of the South.

Severe thunderstorms with hail and damaging winds struck the region Monday afternoon and evening. At least 10 tornadoes were sighted in Mississippi and Alabama, and some injuries were reported. Homes, trailers and farm buildings were damaged extensively.

Thunderstorms erupted before dawn in Louisiana, Mississippi, eastern Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky and in southern Indiana and Ohio.

Fog and drizzle fanned out over the midcontinent from Missouri to Minnesota and eastward into the Great Lakes region and the eastern Ohio Valley. Other showers washed the Pacific Northwest, west Texas, northwestern Florida and areas along the north Atlantic Coast.

Volner told the court that all discussion of the Watergate break-in, which had occurred three days before, apparently took place during the 18-minute period, obliterated on the tape by a steady hum.

Miss Woods testified at a hearing called by Sirica to determine what had happened to the tapes of the meeting between the President and Haldeman, then White House chief of staff.

She said she had spent long hours at Camp David, the President's Maryland mountain retreat, on the weekend of Sept. 29 and 30, transcribing subpoenaed tapes.

"I did work hard over that whole long weekend ... I was exhausted," she said.

On Monday, Oct. 1, she was back in her office in the White House, where she had several hours more work to do on the tapes plus other matters that had piled up over the weekend.

She said she was working on the June 20 tape when her telephone rang.

She said she had to reach way behind her to answer it and when she did she "pushed the record button, obviously," rather than the stop button, which was right next to it on the machine.

In addition, Miss Woods said she would have had to have kept her foot on the pedal which enabled her to move the tape backward or forward while she transcribed it.

"After I turned from the telephone — being someone who has tried to do a good job — I almost panicked," she said when she realized that the record button was depressed.

She checked the tape and found that after a mention by Haldeman of Ely, Nev., where Mrs. Nixon was born, conversation was obliterated by what she called a shrill noise.

Within five minutes Miss Woods went to the President.

"I told the President I was afraid I had caused a gap and he said it was no problem because it was not a subpoenaed tape," she testified.

Plans To Curb Heating Oil Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration has drawn up plans that could require homeowners who use heating oil to turn their thermostats down six degrees from where they were last year.

Other users of oil heat, including commercial and government buildings, could be forced to lower temperatures ten degrees or make equivalent fuel savings.

The plans are contained in the administration's proposal for rationing of heating oil, to be published today in the Federal Register.

A draft of the proposed regulations was obtained by The Associated Press and verified by administration sources.

The regulations also would guarantee certain high-priority users anywhere from 90 per cent of last year's fuel oil supply to 100 per cent of their needs this year.

Barring unforeseen complications, the regulations will take effect Jan. 1.

Under the plan, dealers would be legally required to impose the reductions upon the heating oil delivered to their customers. Purchasers would not need coupons to receive their rations.

The dealers would be required to calculate and distribute the correct amounts according to the formula set by the regulations.

Oil dealers could be fined up to $5,000 for each violation of the regulations, which forbid them to discriminate in deliveries or contract terms among customers within each category.

The regulations seem to indicate that homeowners who last year kept their thermostats at a below-average level would have to lower them by six additional degrees.

However, the proposed regulations say that, "When (the lower thermostat setting) results in undue hardships, the owners or occupants may apply to the local board for adjustment."

The priority uses include fuel production and distribution; public transportation; farming; food

Most Ohio Service Stations To Observe Sunday Closing

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM

Associated Press Writer

Motorists apparently will be staying closer to home Sunday. A spot check of Ohio service stations shows most will comply with the President's request for a voluntary ban on Sunday gasoline sales.

Some stations say they will defy the Sunday closing appeal, however.

"I don't plan to close on Sundays," one Cincinnati station owner said. "I've got two stations and Nixon's hit me hard."

"I'm bitter. I'm in business to make money, and I plan to sell all the gas I'm allocated."

A Cleveland station owner said he won't close unless other stations close. Using parttime workers on Saturday night and Sunday means he can close earlier on other nights, he said.

But several stations said they already were closing early, and a ban on Sunday sales will relieve pressure on their limited supplies.

In Columbus, station owner Howard Johnson said he's been closing his station on Sundays for about a month "so I would have enough fuel to pump the other six days."

"I wouldn't be able to stay open seven days a week anyway," Johnson said.

Most station owners said the closing won't cut gasoline sales drastically, but shift it to Saturdays and Mondays.

But James V. Cresente, executive director of the Northern Ohio Petroleum Retailers Association, said the closing would help eliminate unnecessary driving.

"This plan is far better than having gasoline rationing," said Cresente, who operated a gas station during World War II rationing days. "Thirty years ago that plan was a mess and it would be even worse today because more drivers are on the road."

"We're in trouble if this doesn't work," said one Cincinnati-area station manager. "But I guess Nixon's got to try something."

"Rationing has to be the next step if this doesn't work," he said.

Harold Mechling, division manager for Standard Oil Co. of Ohio company-owned gas stations, said Sohio hasn't made a decision on whether to close its stations Sunday. But he said Sunday closings are "bound to" reduce consumption.

"People won't go anywhere where they can't make it there and back on one tank," he said.

Stock Market's Fast Slide Due To Energy Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Surrounded by what brokers describe as pervasive fears about the nation's energy outlook, the stock market continues to record some of its sharpest declines in recent history.

On Monday the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 29.05 points to 824.95, its lowest level in two years. The singleday drop was the fifth sharpest on record, and followed other major drops of 24.24 points on Nov. 9 and 28.67 points on Nov. 19.

Midway through Monday's session, the Dow average was down more than 33 points. Had that held to the close, it would have exceeded all declines other than the Great Crash of 1929 and the day in 1962 when President John F. Kennedy and the steel industry had a confrontation over price increases.

However, brokers on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange said trading was orderly and calm. They said there was little excitement and no hysteria, adding that Monday's drop was nowhere near the percentage fall recorded in 1929.

"Years ago it would have been a panic with this sharp a drop," said George Gwaldo, for 40 years one of the exchange's supervisors on the floor. "Today it was just a regular sell-off."

But in an analysis accompanying the tapes delivered to Sirica Monday, the White House said there was no such meeting. The White House said the President met with Ehrlichman and then with Haldeman, not with both together.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—The Senate Watergate committee arranged to vote on whether to suspend its public hearings indefinitely. Chief counsel Samuel Dash said investigators needed more time to explore new leads, but a source close to the panel's Republican minority said Dash's staff had run out of hard evidence.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled still lower today after its sharp downward movement Monday, amid what analysts described as continuing investor worries about the impact of the nation's energy problems on business and the economy.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 3.53 to 821.42. Advances and declines were close to even on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market made a brief attempt at a rally in early trading, but what moderate gains it managed had mostly evaporated by noon. Analysts said they saw little immediate chance for any strong upward swing.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index at noon was down 0.57 at 93.10, while the NYSE index was down 17 at 51.34.

Big Board prices included Howard Johnson, up ¼ to 11½; American Motors, up ⅜ to 8⅜; CNA Financial, up ½ to 10⅜; RCA, down ⅛ to 18¾; Sony, up ⅝ to 29⅝; and Dow Chemical, up ⅜ to 49.

Planning Commission Reviews Stage's Pond

The Pickaway County Planning Commission recently reviewed the Stage's Pond project as required by the state because matching federal funds are being used for its purchase.

A nature conservancy will be made of the area. Money collected by the Pickaway County Garden Club, $20,000, is to be turned over to Nature's Conservancy Wednesday so the tract involved may be purchased from Mr. and Mrs. David Hedges, Ashville.

The planning commission reported the conservancy will be an asset to the county, but if there is much additional traffic it may impose a hardship on Walnut Twp. trustees.

The planning commission will contact county and state highway authorities to see if they can help with any road improvements if needed.

The planning commission went on record as preferring no condemnation proceedings be used to acquire additional land in the Stage's Pond area.

Dale Bower, president of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau, met with the planning commission to discuss county-wide house numbering.

He noted that county-wide numbering is valuable to emergency vehicles and to the postal service.

A proposed golf course residential subdivision in Scioto Twp. was reviewed by the planning commission.

Nixon To Publish Some Tax Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has promised six senators to open some of his federal income tax returns to public review this week, says Sen. J. Bennett Johnston Jr.

The Louisiana Democrat said Nixon disclosed his intention at a meeting Monday night with four Democratic and two Republican senators, including Johnston.

A White House spokesman confirmed that Nixon mentioned the subject during the session, and said he will "have something to say about it in the coming days.

No president has ever made such a disclosure and Johnston said Nixon expressed the hope his move would not

Petit Larcenies Investigated

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Garry Betts investigated a report of petit larceny occurring Monday between 10:15 p.m. and 11 p.m. at the Lockbourne Lodge Trailer Park Laundramat.

set precedents.

Johnston said the President indicated he would provide copies of his actual returns and not a summary. "He said these would vindicate his position," Johnston said.

In a news conference with The Associated Press Managing Editors Association on Nov. 17 the President acknowledged the truth of reports that he paid "nominal amounts" in federal taxes in 1970 and 1971 because he had claimed a $500,000 tax exemption on the donation of his vice presidential papers to the government.

Johnston said the President did not say which years would be covered by his disclosure or how or precisely when that disclosure would be made."

Johnston, and Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, said the discussion was friendly and dwelt mainly on such issues as the Middle East and the energy crisis, with a smaller amount of time devoted to the Watergate scandals.

"We talked about football for what I thought was an inordinately long period of time," Johnston said.

But he said he believed that the fact that the President was willing to discuss Watergate but instead was asked mainly about other things "was perhaps indicative of the fact he is beginning to come out of the woods on that particular problem."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., refused to comment on the session. Also attending but not immediately reached were Sens. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., and Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled still lower today after its sharp downward movement Monday, amid what analysts described as continuing investor worries about the impact of the nation's energy problems on business and the economy.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 3.53 to 821.42. Advances and declines were close to even on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market made a brief attempt at a rally in early trading, but what moderate gains it managed had mostly evaporated by noon. Analysts said they saw little immediate chance for any strong upward swing.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index at noon was down 0.57 at 93.10, while the NYSE index was down .17 at 51.34.

The Pickaway County Planning Commission recently reviewed the Stage's Pond project as required by the state because matching federal funds are being used for its purchase.

A nature conservancy will be made of the area. Money collected by the Pickaway County Garden Club, $20,000, is to be turned over to Nature's Conservancy Wednesday so the tract involved may be purchased from Mr. and Mrs. David Hedges, Ashville.

The planning commission reported the conservancy will be an asset to the county, but if there is much additional traffic it may impose a hardship on Walnut Twp. trustees.

The planning commission will contact county and state highway authorities to see if they can help with any road improvements if needed.

The planning commission went on record as preferring no condemnation proceedings be used to acquire additional land in the Stage's Pond area.

Dale Bower, president of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau, met with the planning commission to discuss county-wide house numbering.

He noted that county-wide numbering is valuable to emergency vehicles and to the postal service.

A proposed golf course residential subdivision in Scioto Twp. was reviewed by the planning commission.

FARE Reduces Traffic Fatalities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A federally-funded police program has resulted in a 56 per cent reduction in traffic fatalities in six major Ohio cities.

Deaths in specially patrolled areas during patrol times dropped from 55 in 1972 to 24 this year.

And if some policemen seem grim-faced about the project, it's only because it ends Dec. 31. There's no immediate prospect of its starting again.

The program is called Fatal Accident Reduction-Enforcement (FARE). It operates in Columbus, Akron, Canton, Youngstown, Cincinnati and Toledo.

"It's a hell of a good program," said police Capt. John Bland of Canton.

The program pays patrolmen's salaries for extra hours they put in on traffic duty. When working FARE, officers don't have to worry about service calls or other police duty. They can concentrate on traffic.

Ohio received $450,000 for the project.

Police like the program because it can be tailored to local situations.

In Canton, Capt. Bland used accident frequency charts to pinpoint certain intersections and thoroughfares and certain times as the spots and times where fatalities happen. He said he often assigns men to watch a specific intersection for potential trouble.

In Akron, however, "We don't have right angle (intersection) fatalities," said Lt. Howard Beabaut. "We have high speed and alcohol, so we concentrate on speed."

But in Cincinnati, "When we say FARE in this city, we mean the entire city," said officer John McElhaney. He said 85 per cent of Cincinnati is covered by FARE patrols.

McElhaney said on two particular streets where speeding used to be a problem, "We've practically got them driving backwards."

The strategy is simple: enforce the traffic laws strictly and give citations to violators.

In one 10-week period in Columbus, FARE officers worked 3,834 extra man-hours and issued 1,676 tickets.

"We still try to make them quality pinches, not just citing just to cite," said Lt. Donald Komara of Youngstown.

The results have been dramatic.

In Toledo, city officials said, there were no fatalities in October in FARE

Stockyards Violations Reported By Ohioan

WASHINGTON, Ohio (AP) — A Seaman, Ohio, man has been ordered to stop violating the Packers and Stockyards Act by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The department said Sunday Bob Baldwin, a livestock dealer in southern Ohio and northern Kentucky, violated provisions of the act.

areas during the special patrol times.

In Cincinnati, there were 11 fatalities from the May starting date to the end of October in FARE times and places compared to 17 last year, McElhaney said.

In Akron, fatalities are down about 60 per cent, Beabaut said.

Canton, Columbus and Youngstown also report drops in fatalities.

Despite the results, the program will end Dec. 31. After that date, participating cities will file reports with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration in Washington.

The administration then will evaluate results. Program spokesmen said Congress will appropriate no more funds to the project until the initial program is evaluated.

Police say they don't know what will happen when the project ends, but they have an idea.

In Akron, the program stopped for 2½ weeks in September when the city ran out of FARE money and had to wait for a supplemental grant, Beabaut said.

"Unfortunately, the news media let them know we ran out of money," he said. "The speed went back up and people got killed."

He said 10 people died in the short period.

Claim Polish Paratroopers Sent To Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence reports say Communist Poland is sending members of its elite paratrooper division to Egypt ostensibly to provide logistics support for the U.N. emergency force.

According to these reports, about 800 members of Poland's crack 6th Airborne Division are to be deployed to Egypt. The first elements were said to have arrived in Cairo recently.

It was unclear what the Polish motive might be in sending parachute troops instead of ordinary units.

But American military sources called it a strange assignment for these Polish airborne troops, which they said are specially trained for parachute operations behind enemy lines.

U.S. sources noted that the Polish contingent, approved by the United Nations Security Council after a U.S.-Soviet compromise, are supposed to handle road transport, vehicle maintenance and other rear area duties for the 7,000-man international peacekeeping force.

A State Department official said "it would be surprising" for the Poles to introduce airborne soldiers into Egypt under the guise of support troops.

The U.N. forces mission is to stand between Egyptian and Israeli forces on both sides of the Suez Canal and to police the U.N.-ordered cease-fire.

Its members are authorized to fire in self-defense. This could cover resistance to any armed efforts to prevent the U.N. force from doing its duty.

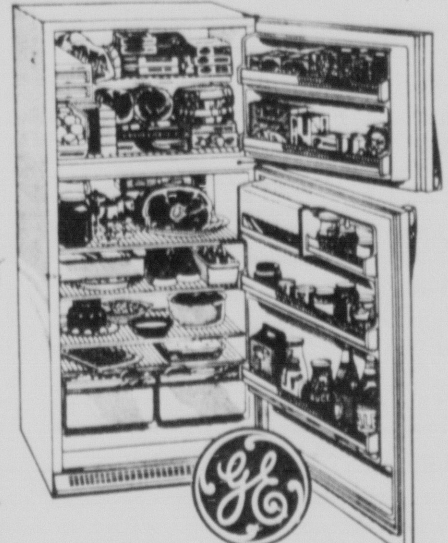

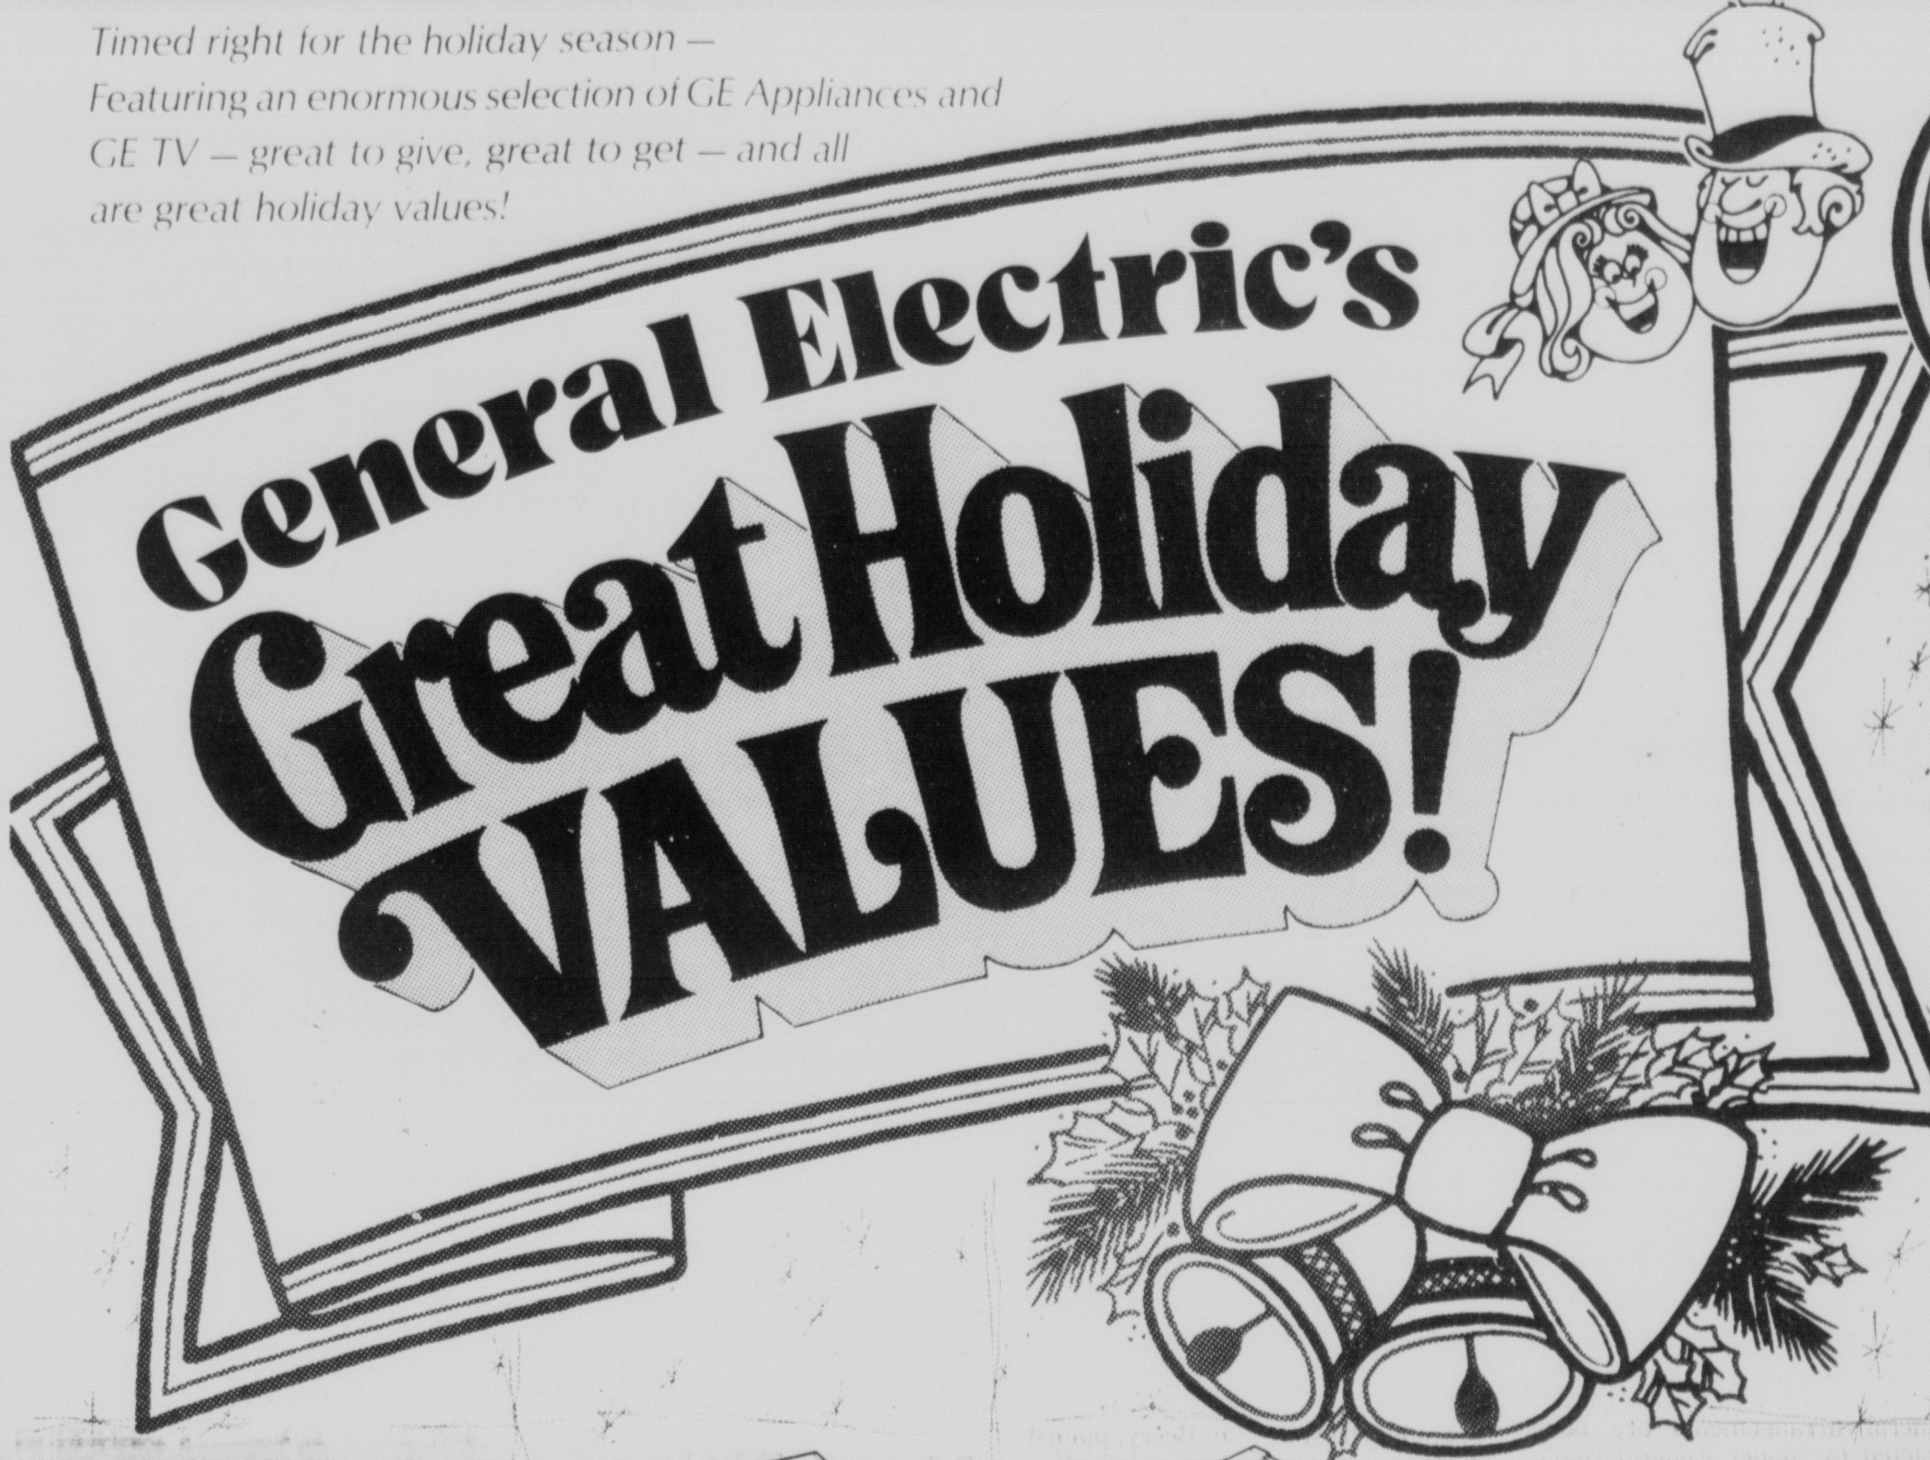

It is not known what kinds of weapons the Polish airborne troops are bringing.

The United States has been opposed to the presence of Russian or other Warsaw Pact combat troops in the tense Middle East area.

A Page Of Opinion

In Strong Position

In domestic production and export sales, the economic picture looks exceptionally good. The United States completed the third quarter and entered the fourth quarter with no signs of a slowdown in its continuing economic expansion.

For the three months ended with September, the U.S. realized a surplus of $2.1 billion in its balance of payments with foreign countries, a sharp increase over the $463 million surplus in the second quarter.

Not A Carson

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

A business executive friend who has been a substantial contributor to the political fortunes of Richard Nixon for 20 years asks, "Why is it that you reporters and commentators always seem to remember the epigrams and witticisms of Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson — but you never laugh over or repeat anything Dick says?" He suspects it's a conspiracy to keep the President out of U.S. folklore.

Well (I said), maybe it's because the President just wasn't built to sprinkle the pages of politics with sparklers. Or maybe he has chronically hired dull writers. Or, most probably, he's too serious about his job to go around making light of it or trying to equate it with pithiness. Pithiness, yes. Why else would he have said to the highly respectful AP Managing Editors Association meeting:

"People have the right to know whether or not their President is a crook. Well, I'm not a crook . . ."

A fast scrutiny of the public remarks of Presidents of the past shows not a single case of one's denying that he was a crook. Not even Nixon's severest critic in the media has ever suggested he was a crook. None of the members of Congress who have called for his resignation or impeachment have listed crookedness, in its basic meaning, as a reason for their demands.

But the President offered what sounded like a defense before any charge could or would have dared been made. President Harding chose a crook as his Secretary of Interior, Albert Fall. (Or, to be more precise, Fall was chosen for him.) But there is no record that Harding ever thought of himself as one. Matter of fact, he said something to the effect of "I can take care of my enemies. Save me from my friends, my dam', dam' friends. It's my friends who keep me walking the floor at night."

Historians have been prone to believe Harding. Observers of today's Presidential happenings have been less willing to believe Nixon's stout defenses of official and unofficial friends who are as a matter of evidential fact dreary albatrosses around his neck. Someone close to him should have warned him — assuming he just didn't blurt the line — that to deny that he was a crook would make him sound rather shockingly like Spiro Agnew.

Then there was the question of the fuel his jet would gulp en route from Washington to the scene of the editors' convention — Disney World, unneringly. (Why would a group from a medium locked in its greatest conflict with a repressive Administration choose to meet its chief antagonist in Mickey Mouse's fun house?) The President again volunteered that he had hoped to save fuel by flying there in his little old 4-engined Lockheed

The two quarters were the only three-month periods in 3½ years in which the U.S. achieved surpluses.

Not all of the improvement was due to expanding exports. Increases in foreign purchases of U.S. investments and a change in international bank transactions also helped build the flow of dollars back into the U.S.

Industrial performance for the month of October was equally pleasing. According to Federal Reserve Board figures, the industrial production index rose six-tenths of one per cent, a faster rate of growth than September's and up more than 7 per cent from the same period last year.

Coincidentally, the Commerce Department reports government revenues for the third quarter exceeded expenditures by $4.2 billion. At least, as the nation heads into a period of energy problems and other shortages, it is doing so from a position of strength.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

There are a lot of very good columnists that our local newspaper could select. I, too, agree with other letters to the editor that we would appreciate it if Chamberlain and Hart were returned. Jim Bishop is far from a good critic. He is quick on assumptions, over-reacts and enormously exaggerates situations. I have found him very negative and many important issues are to him silly, foolish or arbitrary. He lacks genuine artistic expression.

I think we can always appreciate someone who is outspoken if they are on the ball—have a true realization of the situation and don't grow irresponsible. Mr. Bishop is not fully developed as a good critic and when commenting to society on national or moral issues should be more mature, very careful and develop his column with less vulgarity, violence, disgust and notoriety seeking statements.

In effect—give the readers what they want! Let us as a local newspaper-exercise more taste in searching for the truth.

Dear Editor:

We Americans today have gotten away from our old heritage. We don't care about our neighbors like we used to. In the old days when a family moved in the area people from all around would come and help them get settled. Today we would be lucky if they would say "Hi." We are in to much of a hurry today to worry about each other. People are not as friendly as they use to be. Togetherness is what made this country what it is today. Because of people caring about one another we have become the greatest country on the face of the earth. We should get back to the old ways and beliefs of our ancestors, if we are to stay great.

Prince Charles Not In Love, Lady Jane Says

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles and Lady Jane Wellesley have returned from a five-day holiday in Spain, where the heir to the British throne was a guest at the home of Lady Jane's father in Granada.

Lady Jane, 22, told newsmen at Heathrow Airport on Sunday: "There is no romance. It is nonsense what has been said in the press."

Lady Jane's father, the Duke of Wellington, added: "There is absolutely no truth in what has been said so far. Much of it is pure invention by the papers."

The 25-year-old prince didn't stop to talk to reporters. He stepped into a limousine and was whisked away to Buckingham Palace.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our son had repeated ear infections when he was a small boy. He is now 17 and wants to take a course in scuba diving. We are dead set against it and obviously are making him unhappy.

It would be very helpful if you would substantiate our feelings.

Mr. and Mrs. E.B., Ga.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. B.: I would be doing your son a great injustice if I corroborated your attitude without a complete evaluation of his present middle ear condition.

Many scuba divers have had a history of ear infections in their early years.

If there is no perforation of the eardrum, no chronic discharge from the ear and no other evidence of persistent infection, there is no reason to deprive your son of the enjoyment of this exciting sport.

All scuba diving schools insist on a complete examination of the hearing mechanism, the condition of the sinuses and the heart and lungs before accepting a student.

Such a thorough study can be made by your doctor. If it is negative, then by all means let your son pursue his desire to learn scuba diving.

The key to safety in this and other sports is proper training and proper conditioning. This, coupled with excellent equipment, almost always insures safety.

Mrs. S.A., Minn.

Dear Mrs. A.: The extensive advertising campaign to promote vitamin and mineral supplements exclusively designed for women taking the contraceptive pill has served only to cause further anxiety.

There is no validity to the highly touted promotional campaign that oral contraceptives induce a need for specialized vitamins and minerals.

Any simple and inexpensive combination of vitamins and minerals, not necessarily an expensive "special" pill, is adequate.

All women who eat a well-balanced, nourishing diet that includes milk, whole grain and enriched cereals, vegetables, uncooked fruits, meats or fish or cheese, usually maintain their vitamin and mineral (including iron) needs.

In Strong Position

In domestic production and export sales, the economic picture looks exceptionally good. The United States completed the third quarter and entered the fourth quarter with no signs of a slowdown in its continuing economic expansion.

For the three months ended with September, the U.S. realized a surplus of $2.1 billion in its balance of payments with foreign countries, a sharp increase over the $463 million surplus in the second quarter.

Not A Carson

ON THE LINE
By BOB COSINDINE

A business executive friend who has been a substantial contributor to the political fortunes of Richard Nixon for 20 years asks, "Why is it that you reporters and commentators always seem to remember the epigrams and witticisms of Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson—but you never laugh over or repeat anything Dick says?" He suspects it's a conspiracy to keep the President out of U.S. folklore.

Well (I said), maybe it's because the President just wasn't built to sprinkle the pages of politics with sparklers. Or maybe he has chronically hired dull writers. Or, most probably, he's too serious about his job to go around making light of it or trying to equate it with pithiness. Pithiness, yes. Why else would he have said to the highly respectful AP Managing Editors Association meeting:

"People have the right to know whether or not their President is a crook. Well, I'm not a crook..."

A fast scrutiny of the public remarks of Presidents of the past shows not a single case of one's denying that he was a crook. Not even Nixon's severest critic in the media has ever suggested he was a crook. None of the members of Congress who have called for his resignation or impeachment have listed crookedness, in its basic meaning, as a reason for their demands.

But the President offered what sounded like a defense before any charge could or would have dared been made. President Harding chose a crook as his Secretary of Interior, Albert Fall. (Or, to be more precise, Fall was chosen for him.) But there is no record that Harding ever thought of himself as one. Matter of fact, he said something to the effect of "I can take care of my enemies. Save me from my friends, my dam', dam' friends. It's my friends who keep me walking the floor at night."

Historians have been prone to believe Harding. Observers of today's Presidential happenings have been less willing to believe Nixon's stout defenses of official and unofficial friends who are as a matter of evidential fact dreary albatrosses around his neck. Someone close to him should have warned him — assuming he just didn't blurt the line — that to deny that he was a crook would make him sound rather shockingly like Spiro Agnew.

questioning his finances as he was leaving the Vice Presidency in 1960. As a matter of fact, he said, at that point in time he had only "forty-nine thousand dollars and a 1958 Oldsmobile that needed an overhaul."

He should have sued General Motors. The Oldsmobile was only two years old.

It is Nixon himself, not the wicked press, who has been discouraging collectors of usable quotes since he retired from politics in 1962 with the assertion that the press wouldn't have him to kick around any more. His sensational comeback afforded him countless opportunities to say something Lincolnesque (or have somebody write something Lincolnesque for him). Instead, especially of late, he finds himself saying lugubriously, more and more, "If my health permits." Or "I realize that some will wonder about the truth of these statements."

Sorry, business executive friend, that's just not the way for even a sincere President to make it to the happy hunting grounds of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations."

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you have the sinking feeling that everyone but you is bailing out of the stock market? Well, you're wrong. Your companions include some of the most esteemed, the most elite of Wall Street.

They are convinced that while an Oriental rug has been yanked from beneath the American economy it will soon land on its feet, still stepping forward.

The trouble for the market, it appears, is that some of these well-heeled investor intellects are throwing in more words than money, and this isn't the kind of a market that can be cajoled. It must be shown.

Nevertheless, for what it's worth — and right now that seems to be very little — a good many analysts and some investors are talking confidently.

The Consensus of Insiders has turned bullish. This is a forecasting system based on the market activities of insiders, such as officers and directors. Its latest signal is for an upturn within two to five weeks.

Just as bullish is Wright Bankers' Service, which guides the fortunes of many important bank trusts. John Wright, its analyst, is a bit chagrined by the current "extremism," but sticks to his forecast of an advance.

"We believe that the current stock market represents an unprecedented extreme of unreasoned pessimism and subjective evaluation," declares Wright. It will be "followed promptly by a sharp and sustained advance."

Some of the other forecasters are more selective in their bullishness, urging investors to seek special situations, stocks that might benefit from the oil cutback, overlooked stocks and the like.

Standard & Poor's publication, "The Outlook," foresees four groups of stocks as "particularly well situated." The groups: nuclear energy, offshore drilling, rail transportation and property-liability insurance.

The possibilities for nuclear energy and offshore drillers is obvious, by why insurers and railroads?

"Property-liability insurers could well be paying out less in claims as auto speed limits are lowered," says S&P, adding that if industrial activity is cut there might be a concurrent decline in claims for payment.

As for the railroads, "They could

Man's Hopes Cut Short

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Things were looking up for Alvin Heise, 34, of Painesville when he landed a job in Cleveland last week after a six-month search.

But today, Heise's hopes have been dimmed. He is in Lutheran Medical Center, his left arm amputated following a weekend accident.

Heise said he had just received his first week's paycheck and was on his way downtown to buy gifts for other members of the family when he fell on the Cleveland Transit System tracks Saturday.

Heise said he was taking a shortcut across the tracks near West 25th Street when he stumbled and fell.

Stunned momentarily, he was unable to move when a transit car ran over his arm.

The driver said he saw Heise lying with his arm draped over the tracks but was unable to stop in time.

Heise had planned to live in Cleveland and commute to Painesville weekends to be with his wife and four children.

Trash Helps Provide Electricity

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The use of trash as a fuel to run electric generators may help get rid of the solid wastes of the nation's cities but will never make much of a dent in the energy crisis, says the head of a trash-fuel project here.

"If we burned all of the trash produced by the two to three million residents of the seven-county area surrounding St. Louis, it would still provide only 5 to 10 per cent of the total fuel needed to power Union Electric's power plants," said David Klumb, an engineer for the utility. "We would still need a lot of coal."

For the past year, Klumb has been

Corruption Battle Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal crime commission today appealed for a citizen crusade against government corruption and the street crime it promotes.

"The system of criminal justice will break down unless citizens come forward as complainants, as witnesses, and as jury members to participate actively in the prosecution of official corruption," said the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals.

The tools of reform "can be effective only if the public is determined to rid the nation of governmental corruption," the commission said in the sixth and final report prepared during a two-year study financed with a $1.75 million grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The 364-page report was based on the work of a task force headed by Jack Michie, director of the Michigan Division of Vocational Education.

Enlisting citizen participation in a broad range of anticrime efforts, the commission encouraged such projects as prison counseling, youth recreation, and drug treatment centers.

It also said teachers must abandon arbitrary discipline and practice justice in the classroom if children are to learn respect for democratic procedures.

But much of the report concerned the corruption tainting many state and local governments.

Acknowledging the absence of accurate measurements of the pervasiveness of corruption, the commission said even the cases already disclosed are alarmingly numerous.

Further, the report said, "Official corruption breeds disrespect for the law ... As long as official corruption exists, the war against crime will be perceived by many as a war of the powerful against the powerless."

527 Said Killed In Holiday Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 500 persons died in traffic accidents during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

The National Safety Council had estimated that 625-725 persons would die as motorists traveled to spend the holiday with friends and relatives.

At the end of the counting period, which ran from 6 p.m. local time Wednesday to midnight Sunday, 527 persons were reported killed.

A year ago the toll was 658.

working the bugs out of a system that shreds St. Louis trash and feeds it to a huge boiler at the utility's Meramec power plant. So far, the project has had mixed results.

"I have to say I'm cautiously optimistic that we can make our system work. We've had some problems in the past year, but I feel the basic system is sound and we can go ahead and think about expansion to handle the trash for the whole area," said Klumb.

The engineer is quick to point out, however, that the trash-fuel project does more than provide a small percentage of the utility's fuel and reduce solid waste problems.

"What we are really talking about is a recovery process. Right now the city is removing the ferrous materials, the iron and steel, from the trash with magnets and selling the material to Granite City Steel, where it is being recycled.

"And now we are working on ways of removing copper, aluminum and other valuable metals from the trash before it is fed to the furnace," he said.

One of the early problems encountered by the project resulted from glass in the trash. Engineers at the plant soon learned the glass was wearing out carbon steel pipes from the inside as trash was blown through pneumatic tubes from a storage silo to the furnace. At each bend, the glass chipped away at the pipes until it wore holes through them.

The plant also found it is creating its own solid-waste disposal problem by burning the trash. Chunks of wood, metal and heavy plastic in the trash have a tendency to fall through the furnace without burning. This residue is sluiced from the ash pit and pumped to settling ponds, where it is piling up.

Ash from pulverized coal, the main fuel at the plant, also piles up, but it is sold by the ton to manufacturers of cement blocks and to street and highway departments that use it on snow-covered roads.

The problems of the glass and residue may be eliminated soon by a new piece of equipment added to the city's trashshredding facility.

"They are working to perfect their 'classifier,' an apparatus that will effectively separate the heavy materials from the predominantly paper trash," Klumb said. "That will help a lot."

The engineer said the environmental effects of burning the trash with low-sulfur coal have yet to be tested in the air and water around the plant.

"We are starting our own tests soon, and the Environmental Protection Agency will also run some tests," he

Trash Helps Provide Electricity

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The use of trash as a fuel to run electric generators may help get rid of the solid wastes of the nation's cities but will never make much of a dent in the energy crisis, says the head of a trash-fuel project here.

"If we burned all of the trash produced by the two to three million residents of the seven-county area surrounding St. Louis, it would still provide only 5 to 10 per cent of the total fuel needed to power Union Electric's power plants," said David Klumb, an engineer for the utility. "We would still need a lot of coal."

For the past year, Klumb has been

Corruption Battle Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal crime commission today appealed for a citizen crusade against government corruption and the street crime it promotes.

"The system of criminal justice will break down unless citizens come forward as complainants, as witnesses, and as jury members to participate actively in the prosecution of official corruption," said the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals.

The tools of reform "can be effective only if the public is determined to rid the nation of governmental corruption," the commission said in the sixth and final report prepared during a two-year study financed with a $1.75 million grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

The 364-page report was based on the work of a task force headed by Jack Michie, director of the Michigan Division of Vocational Education.

Enlisting citizen participation in a broad range of anticrime efforts, the commission encouraged such projects as prison counseling, youth recreation, and drug treatment centers.

It also said teachers must abandon arbitrary discipline and practice justice in the classroom if children are to learn respect for democratic procedures.

But much of the report concerned the corruption tainting many state and local governments.

Acknowledging the absence of accurate measurements of the pervasiveness of corruption, the commission said even the cases already disclosed are alarmingly numerous.

Further, the report said, "Official corruption breeds disrespect for the law ... As long as official corruption exists, the war against crime will be perceived by many as a war of the powerful against the powerless."

527 Said Killed In Holiday Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 500 persons died in traffic accidents during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

The National Safety Council had estimated that 625-725 persons would die as motorists traveled to spend the holiday with friends and relatives.

At the end of the counting period, which ran from 6 p.m. local time Wednesday to midnight Sunday, 527 persons were reported killed.

A year ago the toll was 658.

working the bugs out of a system that shreds St. Louis trash and feeds it to a huge boiler at the utility's Meramec power plant. So far, the project has had mixed results.

"I have to say I'm cautiously optimistic that we can make our system work. We've had some problems in the past year, but I feel the basic system is sound and we can go ahead and think about expansion to handle the trash for the whole area," said Klumb.

The engineer is quick to point out, however, that the trash-fuel project does more than provide a small percentage of the utility's fuel and reduce solid waste problems.

"What we are really talking about is a recovery process. Right now the city is removing the ferrous materials, the iron and steel, from the trash with magnets and selling the material to Granite City Steel, where it is being recycled.

"And now we are working on ways of removing copper, aluminum and other valuable metals from the trash before it is fed to the furnace," he said.

One of the early problems encountered by the project resulted from glass in the trash. Engineers at the plant soon learned the glass was wearing out carbon steel pipes from the inside as trash was blown through pneumatic tubes from a storage silo to the furnace. At each bend, the glass chipped away at the pipes until it wore holes through them.

The plant also found it is creating its own solid-waste disposal problem by burning the trash. Chunks of wood, metal and heavy plastic in the trash have a tendency to fall through the furnace without burning. This residue is sluiced from the ash pit and pumped to settling ponds, where it is piling up.

Ash from pulverized coal, the main fuel at the plant, also piles up, but it is sold by the ton to manufacturers of cement blocks and to street and highway departments that use it on snow-covered roads.

The problems of the glass and residue may be eliminated soon by a new piece of equipment added to the city's trashshredding facility.

"They are working to perfect their 'classifier,' an apparatus that will effectively separate the heavy materials from the predominantly paper trash," Klumb said. "That will help a lot."

The engineer said the environmental effects of burning the trash with low-sulfur coal have yet to be tested in the air and water around the plant.

"We are starting our own tests soon, and the Environmental Protection Agency will also run some tests," he

County Registered Nurses View Movie Of Joe's Heart

Dorothy Walsh, a registered nurse employed by DuPont, was speaker for the recent meeting of Pickaway County Registered Nurses Assn. at Pickaway Manor. Hostesses were Gladys Robinson and Ruth Hukill.

A movie entitled "Joe's Heart" was shown. It pointed out that Joe's heart weighed about 12 ounces and was dark red in color, about six inches long and four and one-half inches wide at the largest point. Hearts come in all shapes and sizes and are not shaped as valentines as so many people believe. The normal rate of the heart is 72 when awake and 55 beats per minute when asleep. However different rates are normal for individuals. The heart is like two sets of pumps, it takes in carbon monoxide and is purified and then goes out of the second pump and is bright red in color.

The blood is then carried through arteries, veins and capillaries that if stretched in a straight line would go around the world three times. The heart is the strongest muscle in the body.

To keep his heart in good condition Joe should exercise regularly.

Yule Flower Show Scheduled For Upper Arlington

Columbus Regional Council, Garden Club of Ohio will hold its annual holiday flower show, "Charisma Of Christmas" at the Upper Arlington Municipal Services Center, 3600 Tremont Road. The show is open to the public free of charge Dec. 1st, from 2:30 to 5 p.m. and Dec. 2nd from noon to 4 p.m.

Artistic classes will include floral arrangements, wreaths, door hangings and table settings. The horticulture division will include house plants, specimens, and African violets.

A special section of decorated packages will feature gifts provided by each of the 58 clubs in the Columbus region and will be given to the Worthington Children's Home.

General chairman for the show is Mrs. E.J. Rennoe, of the Westwood Acres Garden Club.

Berger Guild 6

Plans Tuesday Meet

The Tuesday meeting of Berger Hospital Guild 6 will begin 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Rosemary Horn, 129 W. Mill St.

Guild 29 To Meet

Berger Hospital Guild 29 plans to meet 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the home of Mrs. Wayne Patrick, Route 2, Kingston.

Frozen cut corn tastes particularly savory when it is cooked with chopped onion and green pepper.

However contrary to some beliefs Joe should not take a warm bath followed by very cold water. This is too much of a shock and puts more pressure on blood vessels. Eating too much is also harmful. For every pound of excess fat the heart has to pump blood as if it were pumping through 200 miles of extra capillaries.

The blood pressure was 140-90 which is normal for his age. However as he works harder more tension builds up and his heart has to work harder. So if he eats less and has less pounds his blood pressure may become better especially if he will learn to relax oftener.

Cigarettes are hard on the heart. If a man smokes two packages of cigarettes a day he is dumping into his blood 80-100 milligrams of nicotine. The lungs cannot purify the blood at this rate and the blood sugar goes up.

The heart gets its nourishment from the coronary arteries which nourish the heart alone. When there is trouble in the coronary arteries it is the greatest single cause of death as fat builds up in the arteries and hardens.

Joe begins feeling dizzy, a little nausea and perspiring. The flow of blood in the coronary artery is stopped and Joe is having pain, part of his heart is dying. One hour after his attack oxygen has been administered to help his breathing. He has received a pain killer and a drug to stabilize the heart.

Three hours later Joe's breathing is easier and he gets an anticoagulant. In four hours the pain is gone and in 24 hours he is resting. A scar is created and now Joe must rest for several months so that his scar can become stronger.

Now there is no smoking, Joe watches his diet better, traffic does not bother him. He has learned to take it easier at the office. He exercises more and makes regular visits to his doctor. He feels better than he has in years and he can look forward to a longer, healthier and rewarding life.

Mrs. Walsh then spoke of the physicals and blood programs that employees can obtain at DuPont.

Judy Smith presided over the business meeting. Reports of the Student Nurse Fund and Blood Bank were given and Gladys Robinsons spoke of a luncheon she attended at the Services Clubs that meet every 2nd Tuesday of the month at St. Philip's Episcopal Church. They discussed meals to be delivered to shut-ins or elderly persons. Two hot and cold units have been donated but more are needed and volunteer drivers are especially needed to deliver the meals.

It was announced that Tommy Kirkpatrick was appointed to the Well Child Clinic Board.

Names for foster children were drawn and members will purchase gifts for them and bring them to the Christmas party to be held in the Guild Room at the Hospital with the hospital nurses as hostesses.

World Missions Circle 4 Program

Circle 4, Good Shepherd United Methodist Church met recently in the Service Center for a program devoted to world missions.

Myrna Siniff opened the meeting with a poem, "Into The Sunlight," a Thanksgiving thought. Plans for the Christmas carry-in dinner meeting on Dec. 13th were discussed and finalized. Betty Andrews will present devotions, Evelyn Perdion, decorations and Myrna Siniff will prepare the turkey and provide the music. There will be a gift exchange.

Prayer partners for the past year will be revealed and new partners chosen for the coming year. A free will offering was taken in order to fulfill the special pledge of $100 which the members had committed themselves to give for the year. Lucille Thomas offered the prayer.

Lida Ross, chairman for spiritual growth presented the devotions using the 92nd Psalm. The hymn "God Will Take Care Of You" was sung. Jessie Cummings gave the prayer followed by readings on the Thanksgiving theme by Maggie Mavis and Lucille Thomas.

Mrs. Ross used magazine illustrations to show conditions in selected foreign and American mission areas. Twenty-one small cards depicting the national costume of the different missionary countries were displayed and members were asked to try to identify as many as possible.

Following this presentation each circle member placed her World Bank offering on a table centered with a single lighted candle flanked by a world map. The program was closed with the singing of "Holy, Holy, Holy" and prayer by Betty Andrews.

Refreshments were served to 17 members by the hostess, Madeline Flowers.

Senior Class Play Scheduled Dec. 7

By BECKI EASTERDAY
"Good Night, Ladies", a farce in three acts by Edwin S. Day, has been selected by a committee of seniors as the class play. The lone public performance is scheduled for December 7, in the Westfall auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p.m.
The plot centers around three youngsters, Jane, Helen, and Sam Raleigh, who have inherited an old home near a college campus.
Plagued by threats of losing the home to mortgage payments, the young people decide to turn it into a girls' dormitory.

Their two elderly aunts are to be the matrons, but a delay in their arrival creates a crisis, as the Dean of Women threatens to spoil the plans by not allowing the co-eds to stay until the home is properly supervised.
A friend of the youngsters', fakes a telegram stating the aunts will arrive as scheduled. In the meantime, Sam and Jane's boyfriend are finally convinced the only possible solution is for them to impersonate the aunts until the real aunts arrive. And what an impersonation! Come to the Westfall Senior Class play Dec. 7, and see for yourself the outcome of this hilarious predicament!

WHS Students Participate In CROP Walk

By VANESSA LONG
Seniors Tim Brigner and Bruce Morgan recently participated in the annual CROP hunger walk.
Tim, 17, lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Brigner, Route 1 Mt. Sterling. "I feel it was a good cause," he states. "I enjoyed meeting the people." He was sponsored by WHS faculty and students collecting $31.10.
Tim enjoys sports and participates in basketball and baseball. He is a member of Varsity W. He plans to attend Miami University.
Bruce is 17 and resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morgan, Route 3, Mt. Sterling. "I did it just for fun," he claims. "Tim and I were older than most of the kids." Bruce was sponsored by WHS faculty and students also. He received $16.00 in pledges. Bruce is a member of the cross-country team and enjoys all sports. He is also a member of the Ski Club. He hopes to ride in the annual bicycle ride to Portsmouth this spring.
Bruce is planning to major in forestry at Ohio State University.

WHS Alumnus Is Teacher

By BECKI EASTERDAY
This week's featured teacher is not a new face to the halls of Westfall, as she is an alumnus and former teacher of WHS.
Mrs. Carolyn Tadlock received her BA from Wilmington College in south-central Ohio. She participated in many theatrical endeavors at the college, such as "Our Town," "Merchant of Venice," "Blood Wedding," and "Riders to the Sea." During the next several summers, Mrs. Tadlock will be studying for her master's degree in English at Ohio State University.
Four years ago Mrs. Tadlock taught English, Speech, and Writing at Westfall. This year she is teaching these same courses, along with junior English.
Her extra-curricular activities include being faculty advisor for the Yearling, and director of the junior and senior class plays.
As a student of Westfall High School, the former Carolyn Bailey participated in National Honor Society, French Club, Future Teachers of America, and was editor of the Yearling.

MRS. CAROLYN TADLOCK

"I'd like to see the English department up-dated, so students could have more of a choice in what they study. Just as they can choose various areas of science or business, they should be able to choose the area of English they want to study", stated the energetic, young teacher.
Mrs. Tadlock resides in Grove City with her husband David and 20 month old son, Jeff.
In her spare time, Mrs. Tadlock enjoys reading, golf, and is planning to take up tennis this summer.
We hope Mrs. Tadlock's ideas of an expanded English curriculum will be put to use in the future, as this program would certainly benefit the students.

Members sold reminder boards during a three day period. Four styles were available to choose from. The money will be used to purchase awards at the end of the year.

SENIOR CLASS

Class officers chose the Herff-Jones company for announcement selections and graduation caps and gowns will come from Josten's. Class colors will be chosen at the next meeting. Jill Long and Susan Hillman were selected to take the DAR Test.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

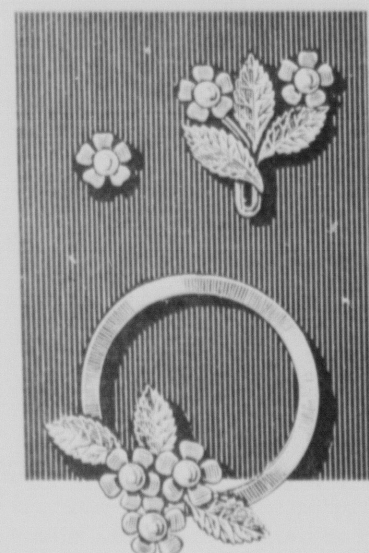

The lab band and the chorus ensemble participated in the first "Night of Harmony" sponsored by the Elks at Circleville High School. Musical talent from the four county high schools and the Elk Singers provided an evening of entertainment to all present.

Welfare Probe To Be Widened

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan said today he's asked state welfare officials to help county assistance agencies review all welfare cases.
Gilligan ordered the review last week after learning nearly 14 per cent of the cases on Ohio's welfare rolls are ineligible for aid.
Gilligan said in a letter to county commissioners he had asked Charles Bates, Ohio's public welfare director, to "reassign all available personnel and what state funds are available" to assist county agencies in the review.

Al Hart Succumbs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Al Hart, 37, head athletic trainer at Ohio State University, died Sunday of cancer of the liver and colon, a spokesman said. He had held the position at Ohio State for three years after serving 12 years in a similar job for Ohio University.

State Tax Credit Explained

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Many Ohio personal taxpayers will share in $21 million of savings on their 1973 state income tax returns.

The savings will represent the credit given to Ohioans filing joint returns. The credit will not apply to single returns.

Stan Spaulding, spokesman for the Ohio Department of Taxation, said the credit, like the graduated income tax, will be based on the ability to pay.

"If your taxable income for the year is $10,000 or less and your tax liability is $100, you will pay 20 per cent less," Spaulding said. "Your tax payment will then be $80."

He said the tax credit will be less for persons who make more. The credit for those with a taxable income between $10,000 and $20,000 will be 12 per cent. Over $20,000, the credit will be 5 per cent.

Spaulding said the 110th General Assembly approved the credit system to eliminate an inequity in the two-year-old state income tax.

In 1972, first year of the tax, a joint return was treated as if it were individual returns and received no tax break.

State law required that if a couple filed a joint federal return, they must file a joint state return. The same held true if they filed a single federal return. It had to be followed by a single state return.

Numerous persons filed state and federal court suits challenging the provisions. They contended that the state law discriminated against couples.

The courts never issued a definitive ruling. But state legislators felt voter pressure and passed tax credit legislation.

Spaulding said application of the tax credit on 1973 returns will mean a loss of $21 million in state revenues, but it will end up in the taxpayer's pocketbook. Total take for the 1973 tax is expected to reach $418 million.

He said the credit system is the only major change in the state income tax for 1973.

Taxpayers can look forward to another change in 1974. Voters in the Nov. 6 election approved a constitutional amendment lifting the 1912 limit of $3,000 in exemptions on the state tax.

The amendment will be effective in 1974 and will mean a savings of $2 million to taxpayers.

Octane Ratings Confuse Motorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following directions in the owners' manuals can cost car owners $1 or more a tank at the gasoline pump.

The reason is the new octane ratings posted on gasoline pumps at the order of the Cost of Living Council.

The owners' manuals for at least the early models of 1974 American cars universally recommend a gasoline of 91 "research-octane" or better.

The white circular stickers on gas pumps generally offer a choice between gasolines with octanes of 87 or 90 or 95. What the owner of any American car built since 1972 wants is 87.

Octane measures the antiknock properties of a gasoline. Using a gasoline with too low an octane can damage the car's engine. Using a gasoline with too high an octane is a waste of money.

But all octanes are not alike.

Any owner's manual printed prior to this year couches its recommendation in terms of research octane, which is based on antiknock properties under mild operating conditions.

Another type of octane — motor octane — measures the antiknock properties under more severe conditions.

When the government first proposed requiring octane posting, the oil companies complained that the traditional measure, research octane, wasn't a fair measure. The companies didn't much like motor octane alone, either.

So the government compromised. It took the research octane rating, added the motor rating, divided the sum by two and ordered the number pasted on gasoline pumps.

Generally, the posted octane ratings are 87 for unleaded regulars, 90 for leaded regulars and 95 for premiums. The ratings can vary from brand to brand, however.

One reason the Cost of Living Council ordered the octane posted was to detect any hidden price increases achieved by lowering octane ratings.

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., had accused the oil companies of cutting octane by 3 to 5 per cent before the posting was ordered.

Now that the octane has been posted, "we've heard from a number of people who are confused," said one of McIntyre's staffers.

The senator has introduced a bill requiring oil companies to include the new octane ratings in their advertisements and requiring auto makers to post the recommended octane in a conspicuous place in each car.

The major automakers are printing new editions of their owners' manuals or writing letters to 1974 owners.

Albert Blasts Nixon Actions On Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is trying to deceive Americans about the real causes and severity of the energy crisis, House Speaker Carl Albert has charged.

The Oklahoma Democrat also asserted that the President has failed to take steps "to avert a major recession."

In a 7,000-word statement issued Saturday, Albert accused Nixon of promising more than can be delivered, of taking energy-conserving actions that "are more cosmetic than meaningful" and of trying to blame Congress for problems.

He argued that Congress was working on energy problems well ahead of the administration.

Congress must choose "between cooperating with an administration which is intent on deceiving the American people with regard to both the severity and the causes of our energy shortages and being honest with the people by telling them that we are living on borrowed time, on our reserves, and that far more stringent allocation, rationing and conservation measures are our only hope of riding out the difficult winter just ahead and the difficult years which will follow," Albert said.

Members of the Fairfield County Grange Youth will also be attending the meeting. A short business session will be conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lands, youth advisers. The business meeting will be devoted to the youth conference Dec. 29-30 at the fairgrounds.

Negotiations Halted By Cincinnati Police Bargaining Rights Plans Gain Approval

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Wage negotiations broke off Monday between the Queen City Lodge 69, Fraternal Order of Police and the bargaining team for the city.

Elmer Dunaway, FOP president, said he asked for a meeting with City Manager E. Robert Turner after turning down the city's offer of $810 plus fringe benefits in a police wage boost. He said police want a $1,000 raise across the board.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Board of Education Monday authorized the administration to begin preliminary plans for a bargaining rights election for two unions competing to represent the system's teachers.

The Cincinnati Federation of Teachers is seeking to oust the Cincinnati Teachers Association for the right to conduct wage contracts with the board.

IRA Blamed For Deaths In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army was blamed today for the deaths of four of the five persons killed by terrorists in Northern Ireland during the weekend.

The dead included three British soldiers and two Roman Catholic civilians. One of the civilians was a man in his 20s whose hooded body was found in Belfast. A total of 913 persons, including 202 British soldiers, now have been reported killed in more than four years of communal warfare.

In addition, three police stations were attacked with rockets during the weekend and there was an explosion outside the home of the province's chief justice, Sir Robert Lowry.

The upsurge in violence over the weekend may be part of a campaign to sabotage the new coalition government announced last week. The IRA's Provisional wing, which is waging a guerrilla campaign in the province, accuses the Social Democratic and Labor Party, which represents the Catholic minority in the coalition, of undermining its campaign to unite Northern Ireland with the Irish Republic.

Results of a public opinion poll made public today indicated more than 90 per cent of the province's Catholics and 68 per cent of the Protestants approve the plans to set up the coalition. It will have six members from the Protestant Unionist Party, four from the Social Democrats and one from the small nonsectarian Alliance Party.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Many Ohio personal taxpayers will share in $21 million of savings on their 1973 state income tax returns.

Stan Spaulding, spokesman for the Ohio Department of Taxation, said the octane — measures the antiknock properties under more severe conditions.

When the government first proposed requiring octane posting, the oil companies complained that the traditional measure, research octane, wasn't a fair measure. The companies didn't much like motor octane alone, either.

So the government compromised. It took the research octane rating, added the motor rating, divided the sum by two and ordered the number pasted on gasoline pumps.

Generally, the posted octane ratings are 87 for unleaded regulars, 90 for leaded regulars and 95 for premiums. The ratings can vary from brand to brand, however.

One reason the Cost of Living Council ordered the octane posted was to detect any hidden price increases achieved by lowering octane ratings.

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., had accused the oil companies of cutting octane by 3 to 5 per cent before the posting was ordered.

Now that the octane has been posted, "we've heard from a number of people who are confused," said one of McIntyre's staffers.

The senator has introduced a bill requiring oil companies to include the new octane ratings in their advertisements and requiring auto makers to post the recommended octane in a conspicuous place in each car.

The major automakers are printing new editions of their owners' manuals or writing letters to 1974 owners.

Albert Blasts Nixon Actions On Energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is trying to deceive Americans about the real causes and severity of the energy crisis, House Speaker Carl Albert has charged.

The Oklahoma Democrat also asserted that the President has failed to take steps "to avert a major recession."

In a 7,000-word statement issued Saturday, Albert accused Nixon of promising more than can be delivered, of taking energy-conserving actions that "are more cosmetic than meaningful" and of trying to blame Congress for problems.

He argued that Congress was working on energy problems well ahead of the administration.

Congress must choose "between cooperating with an administration which is intent on deceiving the American people with regard to both the severity and the causes of our energy shortages and being honest with the people by telling them that we are living on borrowed time, on our reserves, and that far more stringent allocation, rationing and conservation measures are our only hope of riding out the difficult winter just ahead and the difficult years which will follow," Albert said.

Bolenders To Host Grange Youth

The David Bolender family will host the Pickaway County Grange Youth Christmas Party 6:30 p.m. Dec. 2.

A carry-in dinner will precede the recreation which will be under the direction of Karen Ewing.

Members of the Fairfield County Grange Youth will also be attending the meeting. A short business session will be conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lands, youth advisers. The business meeting will be devoted to the youth conference Dec. 29-30 at the fairgrounds.

IRA Blamed For Deaths In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army was blamed today for the deaths of four of the five persons killed by terrorists in Northern Ireland during the weekend.

The dead included three British soldiers and two Roman Catholic civilians. One of the civilians was a man in his 20s whose hooded body was found in Belfast. A total of 913 persons, including 202 British soldiers, now have been reported killed in more than four years of communal warfare.

In addition, three police stations were attacked with rockets during the weekend and there was an explosion outside the home of the province's chief justice, Sir Robert Lowry.

The upsurge in violence over the weekend may be part of a campaign to sabotage the new coalition government announced last week. The IRA's Provisional wing, which is waging a guerrilla campaign in the province, accuses the Social Democratic and Labor Party, which represents the Catholic minority in the coalition, of undermining its campaign to unite Northern Ireland with the Irish Republic.

Results of a public opinion poll made public today indicated more than 90 per cent of the province's Catholics and 68 per cent of the Protestants approve the plans to set up the coalition. It will have six members from the Protestant Unionist Party, four from the Social Democrats and one from the small nonsectarian Alliance Party.

Negotiations Halted By Cincinnati Police Bargaining Rights Plans Gain Approval

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Wage negotiations broke off Monday between the Queen City Lodge 69, Fraternal Order of Police and the bargaining team for the city.

Elmer Dunaway, FOP president, said he asked for a meeting with City Manager E. Robert Turner after turning down the city's offer of $810 plus fringe benefits in a police wage boost. He said police want a $1,900 raise across the board.

The Cincinnati Federation of Teachers is seeking to oust the Cincinnati Teachers Association for the right to conduct wage contracts with the board.

Accommodations Inexpensive In Village Of San Blas

By GUY H. LEATHERWOOD
For The Herald
EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of these articles is not a newcomer to the Herald's readers. His travel series have appeared in this newspaper on Alaska and Israel. A retired postal supervisor, farmer and real estate dealer, he lives in Ashville.

Tuesday, November 6 we arrived in old San Blas. We rented a very nice apartment for 500 pesos for a week. This would be $40 in our currency and Gale says similar accommodations in Naples Florida would cost $160.

So its quite a bargain if you don't mind some of your live-in tenants such as a few big bugs (harmless) or a little lizard. This is a chamelon and he can change color or scat awfully fast. Yes they are in downtown restaurants. Sort of adds atmosphere to the place.

We had planned a big fishing day for Wednesday as Cantorello Flores, the fisherman we had brought the out-board motor for, assured us they were biting in the river. The "river" is not really a river but a body of water which looks like a wide river but it is salt water which reacts with the tide of the sea and is connected with it.

But Wednesday morning I had the "bug." The "travelers complaint" is one thing I had been trying to avoid and one seems to never know where he got it. One is not supposed to eat fruit unless it is peeled, use water only from an approved source etc. But yet I came down with a good case of it. More like the flu than anything else I can think of—nausea, severe aching all over the body, loss of appetite, diarrhea and well, just about everything to sap one's strength. But with some medication the worst was over in about 36 hours.

While I was trying to overcome the "bug", Gale and Butch and Cantorello caught several yellow fish and a red snapper which weighed four to five pounds and more.

The next day, Thursday, I was well enough to try my luck. During the morning we caught quite a few fish in the one to three pound class and I seemed to have most of the luck.

On Friday Butch connected with a nice red snapper, about five pounds, and of course we caught a lot of catfish which we discarded.

Our friend Cantorello arranged to borrow a fiber glass boat about 20 feet long and we attached the 25 HP out-board motor to it and went about 12 miles off shore on Saturday. We had to wait until Cantorello's friend had fished in early morning so we did not get started until about 8 or 9 o'clock. These natives do their serious fishing, commercially, early in the morning.

We went out near an enormous white rock in the ocean and started to troll. Gale and I connected almost simultaneously with mackerel. They were about 20 inches long and would weigh, maybe four pounds. They are a beautiful fish, with colorful spots and they are fighters and have a lot of teeth. I caught another one after a while but that was all for the day. We were using jigs and spoons. With some live bait we may have been able to do better as some of the other boats were using it.

San Blas does not have a harbor and therefore no boats of very large size. However before we left the government was starting to dredge a channel to serve the town. Local opinion seemed to be that it would not survive the destructive forces of the sea. If this little town had a good harbor, as I understand it once had, it would no doubt be a prime resort area.

Even on calm days the waves are pretty high for a small boat. But Cantorello is a skilled craftsman at all phases of his trade. It was marvelous the way he could handle that boat and take advantage of the waves so that we didn't take water and so that the waves would be to our advantage. I had taken one life saving jacket from Gale's car along with us but anything of this type is the exception rather than the rule. These people are so skilled that they seem to feel no great need of this equipment or maybe the cost has something to do with it.

FISHERMAN AT WORK?—Butch Edgington relaxes in the waters near San Blas, Mexico, demonstrating his favorite fishing posture.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Husband 31, Still Wets Himself

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen a problem like mine in your column. Would you believe my husband is 31 and he still wets himself? Not only in bed, but while he's awake.

Last evening, after supper he went next door to talk to a neighbor and have a few beers, and when he came home (about 9:30 p.m.) his pants were soaked! I asked him how that happened, and he said he didn't know. (He wasn't even embarrassed.)

He even denies that he wets himself. He can be sitting in the living room watching TV, and when he gets up, the chair is soaked. I have scrubbed that chair more times than I can count. Our mattress is ruined. I know it's the beer, but he won't admit it and he won't give it up.

He had a physical last month and claims the doctor says he is sound as a dollar. (I'm sure he never mentioned his wetting to the doctor.)

He works hard, is good to the kids, and I love him, but I can't face the neighbors knowing how they must talk about his walking around soaked. I'm losing all respect for him. Please help me.

HIS WIFE IN BOSTON

DEAR WIFE: He's "sound as a dollar" all right—which at the moment isn't very sound. Your husband should see a urologist, and it's imperative that the doctor be informed about his problem. It could be a symptom of something serious, which, if caught early could be remedied.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been divorced for two years, and I have custody of our two children. Occasionally he has them for a weekend.

My "ex" recently married a widow with three children. (I am still single.) Last weekend my children were with their father, and upon returning home they told me that Daddy had a photographer take a picture of him, his new wife, and all the children (his and hers)—for his Christmas card!

Abby, does he have the right to use a picture of my children on a Christmas card with his new wife and her children? Recipients of the card will naturally assume that my children are living with their father, and perhaps wonder if I am an unfit mother.

Should I threaten him with court action if he uses that picture on his Christmas card?

UPSET AND ANGRY

DEAR UPSET: Even though you are divorced, they are his children, too. Forget it. Your friends and family will know that the children are living with you. And who else matters?

DEAR ABBY: I'm another one who never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I am. I am a 21-year-old college senior. I am still a virgin and have vowed to God and myself that I will remain one until I married.

Last year I met Delores, the most wonderful girl in the world, and we became engaged. Here's the problem. We will not be married until next June, and Delores, who is also a virgin (or so she tells me), says she can't wait until next June for her first sexual experience. She says since we are going to be married anyway, what's the difference?

I am only human, and it is difficult for me to keep refusing her, but I feel that if I were to break my vow to God and myself, I would have a guilty conscience the rest of my life. Please help me.

GOD-FEARING

DEAR FEARING: If Delores can't wait, and you'd feel guilty jumping the gun, why wait until June to marry? Tie the knot immediately.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "POOR ED K. IN CHULA VISTA, CAL": Why does Ethel insist on picking out your underwear? Could it be so in case you lose your pants (in the market, or at the track) you'll make a nice appearance?

Frequent periods of showers and thundershowers appear on the weather horizon in Ohio for the next couple of days, before tapering off Wednesday.

The National Weather Service said the showers and thundershowers will be widespread over the entire state with locally heavy amounts at times.

Warm moist air off the Gulf of Mexico covers the entire state and afternoon readings are expected to reach record or near record temperatures. Upper 60 and 70s will be common in the southern counties and the 60s over the remainder of the state.

Readings tonight will lower into the 40s and 50s and climb into the 50s and some 60s on Wednesday as cooler air spread into Ohio.

Unseasonably warm temperatures were reported over most of the state Monday night and early Tuesday, readings ranging from the upper 40s in the extreme northwestern counties to the 50s and 60s elsewhere. A heavy blanket of clouds, some fog and a few showers and thundershowers were also reported.

wastes of 2.2 million head of cattle, 13.5 million chickens, 2.6 million hogs and pigs and 672,000 sheep and lambs on the land and not in the water.

"It's a very potent waste," said Thor Alexander of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency. "It can be very damaging to streams."

The wildlife division of the Ohio Natural Resources Department said 38,788 wild animals — virtually all fish or crayfish — were killed last year by farm wastes.

Most of the kills resulted from chicken manure, agricultural chemicals and silo liquors, said Dale Roach, enforcement supervisor for the wildlife division. He said the wastes "will kill anything in the water."

"It takes the oxygen out of the water," Roach said. "It will just take it all out, and the fish will suffocate."

Farm wastes generally are disposed of by spreading them on the land according to a set formula. Accidents occur if the land is overloaded, so runoff takes the waste into streams, or if storage lagoons overflow, Roach said.

Roach said one farmer in Stark County intentionally emptied his lagoon into a nearby stream last year. "When we started to investigate, he got mad and went and did it again," Roach said.

He said the chicken manure released killed about 6,000 fish. The farmer pleaded no contest to criminal charges and was fined $1,000, Roach said.

"But for the most part, the farmers are doing a good job," Roach said.

Fish kills from farm waste account for only about one per cent of the 3.8 million fish killed last year from all pollution sources, Roach said.

But because of the potent nature of farm wastes, "It's a potential major problem," he said.

"We're thankful they (farmers) are taking the precautions that they are, because it could be a very serious thing," Roach said.

Controlling Board Releases Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Three Ohio legislators on the State Controlling Board voted against a minor Ohio State University request Monday, partly because of supposed opposition the school has to two new medical schools.

"We just fired a warning shot across Ohio State's bow," said Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton, after the board approved 4-3 an OSU request for $30,000 to begin plans for renovating Derby Hall.

Young, a member of the House Finance Committee, said Ohio State and University of Cincinnati officials had been trying to scuttle legislative-approved medical schools for southwestern and northeastern Ohio.

One of the schools is to be built at the Wright State University campus at Dayton. The other is planned for Portage County. Each will be operated by three area universities.

"We are serving notice that we will not permit it (OSU) or the University of Cincinnati to kill something we approved," Young said. "Let's hope they get the message."

The board released $3,256,000 to the University of Akron, $56,000 to go toward purchase of property and $3.2 million toward construction of a social science building.

Among other releases:

—$650,399 to Miami University for four projects, including $296,799 for renovation of the basement area of Uphan Hall.

—$2.7 million to the attorney general's office for law enforcement radio network supervised by the Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Identification and financed by federal revenue sharing funds.

—$405,000 to the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation for rehabilitation work at Gallipolis State Institute.

—$2.1 million for additional salaries for the state's judiciary, approved by the legislature.

—$977,960 to Ohio University for renovation work at Lindley Hall, Memorial Auditorium and the Messenger Building.

—$535,558 to Ohio University for a portion of its $3 million assessment for relocating the Hocking River as part of a flood control project.

Coal Export Limitations Being Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to limit coal exports has been introduced by Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W.Va., who says 56 million tons of domestic coal was sold to other countries last year.

Hechler's bill, introduced Monday, would subject the coal industry to requirements of the Export Administration Act of 1969 while allowing executive leeway with countries from which the United States imports oil.

"If we have such an energy crisis that we are forced to resort to ripping up the land by strip mining, then it doesn't make any sense to export such a large amount of our coal production," Hechler said.

Industry spokesmen have criticized Hechler for failing to fully understand the export situation. They contend most of the exported coal is of metallurgical quality and, as such, can't be used in coal fired electrical energy plants for both technical and economic reasons.

However, Hechler said Monday that the coal could be used in generating plants and would be a relatively clean fuel because of its low-sulfur content.

"I find it hard to believe that any American industrialist would contend that an American product is too good for Americans," Hechler said.

A Hechler staff member said checks with the power industry indicate the only problem with metallurgical coal is its high price.

Another contention of the coal industry spokesmen was that much of the exported coal is mined in joint ventures financed by foreign capital.

Rural Development Outlays Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Since the October 1973 funding of the Rural Development Act of 1972," the Agriculture Department "is again able to sharply increase its support of local developmental efforts," says Asst. Agriculture Secretary William Erwin.

With a news release on Erwin's speech today to the National Conference on Rural Development in Des Moines, Iowa, the assistant secretary's office here provided a chart of past spending and estimates for the future.

The chart predicts substantial growth this year — almost 500 per cent in one case — in USDA rural development spending.

But, an Erwin aide conceded Monday, it probably will be Wednesday before officials know exactly how much money they will have to spend and where they will spend it. He said it depends on whether the White House budget office would give them today, as expected, their allotments for the fiscal year that began almost five months ago.

The act Erwin mentioned created his job, as it brought together USDA's rural development programs under one chief who also is responsible for coordinating all U.S. government efforts in the field.

It was signed into law in August 1972, "out of the budget cycle." The new programs it authorized were without funding in their own right until Congress approved appropriations for fiscal 1974.

Money was shifted from other agencies to operate Erwin's office; and in the 15 months of the act's existence, not a penny for the new programs has left Washington except for a oneweek leadership school, congressional critics charge.

It was mid-October before Congress passed appropriations for rural development and the other Agriculture Department programs and President Nixon signed the bill.

In turn, the department on Saturday will be three months overdue in presenting to Congress its statement of rural development goals.

Also, it has delayed publishing final revisions of regulations for the programs until it has the money in hand, and a Senate oversight hearing has been delayed until January because Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has not been able to fit it into his schedule.

But, in his speech today, Erwin concentrated on the expansion this calendar year of traditional Farmers Home Administration loans and grants, the principal programs brought into the new structure by the 1972 act.

Urge Turns On Red Light

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A long-time safety activist and critic of the National Highway Council called for a federal measure to permit right turns on red lights to conserve fuel.

Herbert Geltner, of Cincinnati, who said he has waged a letter-writing campaign since 1966 for tighter safety laws, said such a measure would save the country "a lot of gas and a lot of money."

California and Florida presently have the law, he said, noting that a tuned up auto emits 3½ cubic feet of exhaust in a 30-second period while waiting for a light to change.

"Take that times 100 million cars being driven a day and the emissions given off would be enough to cover one square mile 20-30 feet high," he said.

"It's ridiculous," Geltner said. "We can act to restrict gas dealers from selling on Sundays, but no one is considering something that would have immediate results."

Southeast District Honors SCOL Coaches

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Miami Trace's Fred Zechman is The Associated Press Ohio Southeastern District Class AAA high school football coach of the year while Lancaster swept the players' honors.

Zechman, in his first season, guided

Miami Trace to a 6-4 record and a tie for second place in the South Central Ohio League.

Rod Stewart, the first junior to gain more than 1,000 yards at Lancaster, was selected the top Class AAA back by an area panel of sports writers.

The Class AAA lineman title was shared by Athens' Bill Moorehead and Jack Miller, a 215-pound Lancaster defensive end who has been in on 187 tackles, forced 15 fumbles, recovering eight, blocked two punts and deflected nine passes in two seasons.

Moorehead, a 208-pound two-way tackle, led Athens' defense.

Three mentors who led their teams to 10-0-0 regular seasons, Bob Lutz of Ironton, Maurice Pfeifer of Washington Court House and Ed Miller of Wheelersburg, shared the Class AA district coaching award.

Chuck Wilson of Washington Court House, with 1,537 yards rushing and 184 points this year and 356 in his career, was the No. 1 Class AA back. The leading Class AA lineman was Terry Parker, a 250-pound Ironton defensive tackle.

In Class A, Ken Putnam of 9-0 Frankfort Adena was the Coach of the Year, Doug Devilbiss of Portsmouth Notre Dame the No. 1 lineman and Randy Hall of Coal Grove the best back.

Westfall 7th, 8th Graders Split Wins

Westfall Seventh and Eighth Grade basketball teams split victories with Zane Trace Monday on the Pioneers' floor.

The Mustang Seventh Graders lost, 18-12, while the Eighth Graders brought home a 46-38 victory.

For the Westfall Seventh Grade, Kern scored two points, Starkey six and Gibson four.

Westfall Eighth Graders scoring were Rowland with 14, Hurley with 12, Mowery with 10, McPherson and Kern with four each and Stiles with two.

Opponent Is Found For Poultry Bowl

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — An opponent has been found for Stephen F. Austin State University in the first annual Poultry Bowl, to be played here Dec. 8, bowl officials have announced.

A spokesman said Gardner Webb College of Boiling Springs, N.C., has accepted an invitation to play in the bowl game. Gardner Webb posted a 7-4 record this season.

Bowl," tight end Ted Kwalick said after Monday night's 20-6 nationally televised victory over the Packers, illustrating just how bad things had become.

The Packers, another team on the skids, produced enough misplays to match some recent Super Bowls, and Coach Dan Devine moaned, "I'm sick to my stomach."

But 49ers' Coach Dick Nolan attributed the victory to good defense, a strong running attack led by Vic Washington and some timely late passing by Steve Spurrier. The team produced 268 yards on offense and suffered just one turnover in breaking its four-game losing streak.

"The weather conditions were perfect for passing," said Spurrier, as if apologizing for his 20-yard fourth period touchdown pass to Kwalick which put the 49ers safely ahead, 17-6.

Despite the calm weather, something Candlestick Park ballclubs and fans pray for and seldom get, the 49ers' offense chose to stay mainly on the ground. Spurrier's touchdown pass was just the sixth San Francisco completion of the night.

Rookie Joe Reed, who moved ahead of Spurrier and 38-year-old John Brodie in the quarterback picture three weeks ago, completed just five of 16 passes for 44 yards before leaving with a pulled groin muscle.

Washington rushed for 94 yards, scored the game's first touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the second period and added a 37-yard kickoff return. Fullback Ken Willard had 55 of the team's season-high 174 rushing yards. But it was too late to make much difference this season. The 49ers, winners of the Western Division of the National Football Conference the past three seasons, are 4-7 now and tied for third with New Orleans.

Law Clouds Treatment Of Athletes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Say you're at a high school football game. You might see this tableau:

In the middle of the field a player lies injured, writhing in pain. Coaches and the team physician shuffle through papers looking for the form that would permit them to give the lad emergency medical help.

This scenario may be a bit improbable but not impossible under H. B. 186 that became law last Aug. 22. The measure orders Ohio schools to send a form authorizing emergency medical help to each parent and allows parents to sign the forms.

What it doesn't do is spell out what happens if the parents don't sign and return the forms.

Some educators claim the new law is creating havoc for Ohio high schools. "This has cost Ohio schools millions of dollars in secretarial help alone," said Don Gatchell, assistant principal of Chillicothe High School.

Robert Holland, chief of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Services Section of the Department of Education, cited the possible case of the injured football player as an example of what could happen.

"He could be lying there on the field while the coaches and the assistants shuffle through 35 or 40 forms to see if his was there," Holland said.

Schembechler Still Angry

At Big Ten

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)— The Big Ten athletic conference may have made Bo Schembechler an enemy for life.

The University of Michigan football coach hasn't calmed down a bit since the vote Sunday by conference athletic directors to send Ohio State to the Rose Bowl instead of the Wolverines.

"The Big Ten will live to regret that," he said in a tearful conclusion Monday to his address at Weber's Inn before the Quarterback Club of Ann Arbor.

The some 450-500 persons at the gathering, sponsored by the U-M Alumni Association of Ann Arbor, gave Schembechler a standing ovation as he left to attend a press luncheon.

Schembechler continued to vent his anger as he spoke with about a dozen newsmen at the luncheon.

"The Tournament of Roses Committee should select which team goes to the Rose Bowl from the Big Ten," he said bitterly. "No athletic director, no commissioner should have anything to do with determining who goes."

He acridly accused Wayne Duke, the conference commissioner, of turning athletic directors opinions against Michigan.

He said he believed Duke influenced the voters by telling them about the broken collarbone suffered by U-M quarterback Dennis Franklin in Saturday's 10-10 tie with Ohio State.

Matthews Named NL Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — The San Francisco Giants have produced some sparkling baseball diamonds ... Willie Mays ... Orlando Cepeda ... Willie McCovey ... and now, Gary Matthews.

Following in pretty illustrious company on the Giants, Matthews was named Monday the National League's Rookie of the Year for 1973.

Matthews beat out Montreal pitcher Steve Rogers to become the fourth Giant to win the prize. Mays won his when the Giants played in New York.

A total of nine players received votes — the largest field ever — as the National League produced one of its best crops in history. But despite the most diversified voting in the 27-year history of the award, Matthews won in a breeze.

His total of 11 points exceeded by far that of Rogers' 3½. One writer, unable to decide between Rogers and Pittsburgh outfielder Richie Zisk, cast a half vote for each player.

Others named in the voting were catcher Bob Boone of Philadelphia (2 points); pitcher Elias Sosa of San Francisco (2); Cincinnati third baseman Dan Driessen (2); Los Angeles third baseman Ron Cey (1); second baseman Dave Lopes of Los Angeles (1); Cincinnati outfielder Johnny Grubb (1) and Zisk (½).

The first recorded mile run in under four minutes took place on May 6, 1954, when Roger Bannister did it in London, in 3:59.4.

49ers Turn Back Packers; Win 20-6

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers, blessed by perfect weather and timely Green Bay mistakes, pulled out of the four-week slide which took them to National Football League oblivion.

"I feel like we've just won the Super

Wittenberg Dominates All-Star Team

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — League champion Wittenberg University dominated the coaches' Ohio Conference all-star football selections by landing seven of the 25 first team berths.

The Tigers, who whipped Marietta in the playoff game, placed tackle Steve Drongowski, receiver Bill Reid and running back Glenn Hendrix on the offensive unit.

Wittenberg players on the defensive platoon included linemen John Paoloni and Antone Strothers, linebacker Art Thomas and safety Randy DeMont.

Four Heidelberg players, quarterback Jim Ruth, fullback Bob Hunt, defensive end Tom Coffman and linebacker Gary McKillip, were the only repeaters on the first team from a year ago.

The all-stars:

FIRST TEAM OFFENSE

Tight end Mark Leonard, Kenyon; wide receivers Jim Myers, Kenyon, and Bill Reid, Wittenberg; tackles Steve Drongowski, Wittenberg, and Greg Arnold, Capital; guards Ron Heck, Ohio Wesleyan, and Tony French, Wittenberg; centers Mike Adams, Capital, and Chuck Simonetti, Muskingum; quarterback Jim Ruth, Heidelberg; running backs Glenn Hendrix, Wittenberg; Bob Hunt, Heidelberg, and Craig Snider, Capital, and kicker Giovanni DiLalla, Kenyon

FIRST TEAM DEFENSE

Ends Tom Coffman, Heidelberg, and Randy Haditsch, Denison; tackles Claude Butler, Baldwin-Wallace; John Paoloni, Wittenberg; Mark Reed, Muskingum, and Antone Strothers, Wittenberg; linebackers Gary McKillip, Heidelberg, and Art Thomas, Wittenberg; deep backs Randy DeMont, Wittenberg; Everett Heard, Baldwin-Wallace; Duane Petty, Ohio Wesleyan, and Bob Sagle, Muskingum.

SECOND TEAM OFFENSE

SECOND TEAM DEFENSE

Ends Tom Cahill, Otterbein, and Rod Ridgeway, Wittenberg; tackles Mike Hursky, Baldwin-Wallace; Terry Judd, Otterbein; John Quallen, Marietta, and Alex Young, Kenyon; linebackers Dave Foy, Wooster, and Mark Summers, Baldwin-Wallace; Dan Forthofer, Heidelberg, and Tom Yingling, Ohio Wesleyan.

Westfall 7th, 8th Graders Split Wins

Westfall Seventh and Eighth Grade basketball teams split victories with Zane Trace Monday on the Pioneers' floor.

The Mustang Seventh Graders lost, 18-12, while the Eighth Graders brought home a 46-38 victory.

For the Westfall Seventh Grade, Kern scored two points, Starkey six and Gibson four.

Westfall Eighth Graders scoring were Rowland with 14, Hurley with 12, Mowery with 10, McPherson and Kern with four each and Stiles with two.

Opponent Is Found For Poultry Bowl

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — An opponent has been found for Stephen F. Austin State University in the first annual Poultry Bowl, to be played here Dec. 8, bowl officials have announced.

A spokesman said Gardner Webb College of Boiling Springs, N.C., has accepted an invitation to play in the bowl game. Gardner Webb posted a 7-4 record this season.

Bowl," tight end Ted Kwalick said after Monday night's 20-6 nationally televised victory over the Packers, illustrating just how bad things had become.

The Packers, another team on the skids, produced enough misplays to match some recent Super Bowls, and Coach Dan Devine moaned, "I'm sick to my stomach."

But 49ers' Coach Dick Nolan attributed the victory to good defense, a strong running attack led by Vic Washington and some timely late passing by Steve Spurrier. The team produced 268 yards on offense and suffered just one turnover in breaking its four-game losing streak.

"The weather conditions were perfect for passing," said Spurrier, as if apologizing for his 20-yard fourth period touchdown pass to Kwalick which put the 49ers safely ahead, 17-6.

Despite the calm weather, something Candlestick Park ballclubs and fans pray for and seldom get, the 49ers' offense chose to stay mainly on the ground. Spurrier's touchdown pass was just the sixth San Francisco completion of the night.

Rookie Joe Reed, who moved ahead of Spurrier and 38-year-old John Brodie in the quarterback picture three weeks ago, completed just five of 16 passes for 44 yards before leaving with a pulled groin muscle.

Washington rushed for 94 yards, scored the game's first touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the second period and added a 37-yard kickoff return. Fullback Ken Willard had 55 of the team's season-high 174 rushing yards.

But it was too late to make much difference this season. The 49ers, winners of the Western Division of the National Football Conference the past three seasons, are 4-7 now and tied for third with New Orleans.

Law Clouds Treatment Of Athletes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Say you're at a high school football game. You might see this tableau:

In the middle of the field a player lies injured, writhing in pain. Coaches and the team physician shuffle through papers looking for the form that would permit them to give the lad emergency medical help.

This scenario may be a bit improbable but not impossible under H. B. 186 that became law last Aug. 22. The measure orders Ohio schools to send a form authorizing emergency medical help to each parent and allows parents to sign the forms.

What it doesn't do is spell out what happens if the parents don't sign and return the forms.

Some educators claim the new law is creating havoc for Ohio high schools. "This has cost Ohio schools millions of dollars in secretarial help alone," said Don Gatchell, assistant principal of Chillicothe High School.

Robert Holland, chief of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Services Section of the Department of Education, cited the possible case of the injured football player as an example of what could happen.

"He could be lying there on the field while the coaches and the assistants shuffle through 35 or 40 forms to see if his was there," Holland said.

Rio Grande Cagers Defeat Tiffin, 88-73

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rio Grande, defending Mid-Ohio Conference basketball champion, continued its winning ways Monday night by whipping new league entry Tiffin 88-73.

It was the first conference game of the season for the Redmen, now 3-0 for all games, and the season opener for Tiffin.

OU Coed Lands Spot On U.S. Hockey Team

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Wendy Weeden, an Ohio University senior from Hudson, Ohio, was the only Ohioan who landed a spot on the 22-member U.S. women's all-star field hockey team this season.

She won a second team spot at right halfback on the squad that will take a six-week tour of South Africa next summer.

Schembechler Still Angry At Big Ten

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)— The Big Ten athletic conference may have made Bo Schembechler an enemy for life.

The University of Michigan football coach hasn't calmed down a bit since the vote Monday by conference athletic directors to send Ohio State to the Rose Bowl instead of the Wolverines.

"The Big Ten will live to regret that," he said in a tearful conclusion Monday to his address at Weber's Inn before the Quarterback Club of Ann Arbor.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Friends may try to tempt you into making an unsound investment. Say "No" and hold your ground—even if they are unreasonably disturbed by your refusal.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Personal relationships governed by beneficent influences. A day in which you can successfully combine business and pleasure.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Your wonderful imagination can lead you to new avenues of attainment. Mobilize your variety of gifts and capitalize on your unique ideas.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Past efforts should be bearing fruit now. Study conditions and trends which may seem odd, but may hold new advantages.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Accentuate the positive in your thinking if you would make the real advancement possible now. Routine activities may be happily supplemented by some new interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): You can accomplish more by teamwork now than by "going it alone." Some fine opportunities indicated through cooperation with associates.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): A period for ACTION! Put all you have into day's endeavors: your best thoughts, plans, efforts. Look for the unexpected, and appreciate all—even the challenges.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): You are inclined to be extremely critical of others, but the shoe may be on the other foot now. Don't be resentful. Listen — and learn!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Past investments of time and efforts now begin to pay off, but don't rest on your laurels. Strike out for bigger and better attainment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You may face some resistance to plans, unforeseen obstacles, but you can find ways to skirt them. Mostly it will depend on your perception, logic and will power.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Note the fine points in complicated matters, affairs of import. Make statements, decisions particular care. Past procedures may have to be changed.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Do not be swayed by your emotions. Objectivity will bring you a clearer view of all situations. A romantic involvement will call for an especially perceptive eye.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a truly brilliant intellect and, being highly imaginative as well, could make a huge success in any of the arts. Unlike Sagittarians, business does not appeal to you especially but, in addition to your creative abilities, you have scientific and mechanical skills; could become a highly successful electrical engineer, for instance. You have a penchant for higher learning, are conversationalist, an amiable companion and generous to a fault. Birthdate of: William Blake, poet, painter, mystic; Arthur Rubenstein, pianist-composer; Brooks Atkinson, dramatic critic.

Opera Opens At The National

BOSTON (AP) — Associate Artists Opera, which employs young singers and musicians from New England, opens its fourth season with Mozart's "Così fan tutte."

It will be the first time that theatrical scenery and costumes have appeared on the stage of the National Theater in more than 40 years. Once it was Boston's largest vaudeville palace, then it had occasional movies.

Now it is part of the Boston Center for the Arts and it has undergone extensive renovations. The Associate Artists Opera will make the National Theater its permanent home.

Other operas in the season will be "Amahl and the Night Visitors," "Riders to the Sea," "The Bear" and "La Cenerentola."

CMA Endorses Freedom Train

NASHVILLE (AP) — The Country Music Assn. has given its endorsement to The American Freedom Train Foundation, a nonprofit organization that will celebrate the nation's bicentennial with a steam-powered display train, a "fair on wheels" which will tour the country.

The train will begin its journey April 1, 1975, and continue for at least 15 months. Its cars will have slides, music and artifacts. The Country Music Assn. may lend some of its Hall of Fame collection.

Italy Has No Color TV

ROME (AP) — Italy, with 55 million people, has 11 million television sets. But most of them are black and white. Italy is one of the few industrial countries in the world without color TV.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The way Alan King sees it, "Comedy is the only art form that's never recognized its own." But he hopes to remedy this with an annual "Charlie" comedy awards show on television.

Although the Brooklyn-born comedian says the show won't be ready until January 1975, he's already trying to line up a blue-ribbon panel of comedy experts who'd nominate entries from all fields of mirth-making.

At the same time, he says, he's seeking permission from Charlie Chaplin to use Chaplin's name on the show's proposed "Charlie" awards, gold statuettes of Chaplin's "Little Tramp" character which would be awarded all winners on the show.

"I can't think of anybody in the world whose name is more synonymous with comedy than Charlie Chaplin," King said.

He emphasized that the awards wouldn't be restricted to television comedy but would encompass other fields of humor — the stage, books, movies, cartoons and even the rascals known as columnists.

"Let's say there'd be one for the best comedy writing for a newspaper," he said. "It'd cover the Art Buchwalds, the Russell Bakers, but also include local writers. 'You know, there are about 100 guys around the country who write some very funny stuff for newspapers and nobody knows about them,' he said, perhaps getting himself 100 votes right on the spot.

King said he doesn't want too many categories of humor on the show. "That'd be a bore," he said. "What we'll probably do is sit down and start with 20, then narrow it down even further."

He said his proposed blue-ribbon panel would be made up of leading figures in humor — performers, playwrights, jokesmiths and the like — who'd serve on what he called a "National Comedy Board."

They'd meet and nominate five entries in each category of humor, abstaining from the voting in categories in which their efforts are included, he said.

After that, King said, final voting on the nominees would be done by the 1,300 critics, television reviewers and entertainment editors he estimated work on newspapers in the United States.

King, who said ABC-TV wants to carry the "Charlie" shows he proposes, was asked if the shows wouldn't cause gripes from television editors who complain there already are too many awards shows on TV.

"Well, let me tell you something: Let everybody beef and let me get a 40 share," he laughed, referring to a share-of-audience figure that any network would be proud to call its own.

Kennedy Center Prints Magazine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts has published "Quarto," 58 pages devoted to the arts.

There are 15 articles written by famous critics and writers about the arts.

If financially successful, other issues will be published and it may become available by subscription.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The way Alan King sees it, "Comedy is the only art form that's never recognized its own." But he hopes to remedy this with an annual "Charlie" comedy awards show on television.
Although the Brooklyn-born comedian says the show won't be ready until January 1975, he's already trying to line up a blue-ribbon panel of comedy experts who'd nominate entries from all fields of mirth-making.
At the same time, he says, he's seeking permission from Charlie Chaplin to use Chaplin's name on the show's proposed "Charlie" awards, gold statuettes of Chaplin's "Little Tramp" character which would be awarded all winners on the show.
"I can't think of anybody in the world whose name is more synonymous with comedy than Charlie Chaplin," King said.
He emphasized that the awards wouldn't be restricted to television comedy but would encompass other fields of humor — the stage, books, movies, cartoons and even the rascals known as columnists.
"Let's say there'd be one for the best comedy writing for a newspaper," he said. "It'd cover the Art Buchwalds, the Russell Bakers, but also include local writers."
"You know, there are about 100 guys around the country who write some very funny stuff for newspapers and nobody knows about them," he said, perhaps getting himself 100 votes right on the spot.
King said he doesn't want too many categories of humor on the show. "That'd be a bore," he said. "What we'll probably do is sit down and start with 20, then narrow it down even further."

He said his proposed blue-ribbon panel would be made up of leading figures in humor — performers, playwrights, jokesmiths and the like — who'd serve on what he called a "National Comedy Board."
They'd meet and nominate five entries in each category of humor, abstaining from the voting in categories in which their efforts are included, he said.
After that, King said, final voting on the nominees would be done by the 1,300 critics, television reviewers and entertainment editors he estimated work on newspapers in the United States.
King, who said ABC-TV wants to carry the "Charlie" shows he proposes, was asked if the shows wouldn't cause gripes from television editors who complain there already are too many awards shows on TV.
"Well, let me tell you something: Let everybody beef and let me get a 40 share," he laughed, referring to a share-of-audience figure that any network would be proud to call its own.

TV Board Follows Most Energy Conserving Steps

An informal discussion of the energy crisis and measures to be taken to help the problem was held at the regular meeting of the Teays Valley Board of Education Monday evening. Superintendent Benis Lutz reported to the board that the guidelines followed by other schools were being followed at Teays Valley.

Thermostats have been turned back several degrees and lights not in use are turned off. No steps have been taken as of now to discourage school trips. Requests within reason are still being granted.

A request of a group of cheerleaders to travel to Kentucky was denied, however, by the board because of the energy crisis. The trip indicated was of excess mileage and not considered of great importance.

Routine transfers were made in the internal appropriations and a resolution was passed to pay the non-certified employees on Dec. 21, before the Christmas vacation.

The board approved the district's participation in the South Central Unified Purchasing Cooperative which is a four-county purchasing unit. Ross, Madison, Fairfield and Pickaway counties submit needs to suppliers as a group ask for quotations for the entire area. Bid prices are usually cheaper to the group.

A request for leave of absence was granted to James R. Davis for the balance of the semester through Jan. 18. The board approved the employment of Mrs. C. R. Stonebraker to fill the position left by Davis, Nov. 19 through Jan. 18.

Charles Thomas, an industrial arts teacher, was employed on an hourly basis for maintenance as needed to repair facilities and build bookcases.

The Teays Valley Classroom Teachers' Association was recognized as the sole bargaining agent for the professional teaching staff for the current year.

One day professional leave was granted to Stanley Dixon to attend a seminar at Westland High School in Franklin County. The seminar will be held Dec. 6 and will cover junior high science.

Mrs. Esther Duvall was employed for 1974 as secretary to the superintendent and assistant clerk. She was employed in this capacity last year and her contract was renewed for another year.

Discussions with the principals of the schools in the district were held concerning the activities and programs in the respective buildings. Reports were made on the dental clinics at Walnut and Scioto Elementary buildings and the percentage of attendance at the parent-teacher conferences held Nov. 2. The county-wide conferences showed a better attendance than last year.

Martin Blankenship, a senior at Teays Valley High School, was employed for two hours daily as a part-time custodian at Ashville School. He is on a work program through the school.

Superintendent Lutz reported to the board on pending legislation such as the national lunch program. No official notice has been made to the district concerning the possible increase of two cents in the reimbursement subsidy for the school lunches.

Quotations are being gathered for trash compactors and new buses with the latest safety equipment. A discussion was held concerning the need for both.

Payroll deductions were approved for teachers interested in cancer insurance. The board will not pay any of the premiums for the insurance but will approve the deductions as authorized by individual teachers.

A report from the recent survey made by the state on the cafeterias was read to the board. The report was extremely satisfactory and commendable.

A resolution was passed designating the Citizen's and Ashville Banks as depositories for the current year for active and interim funds.

Final discussion included the bond issue. The board will decide at the next meeting whether to submit a package levy on the May primary or to wait until the next November election.

The board will meet again Dec. 17 rather than at the regular scheduled time due to the holidays. Board members in attendance were William Hinkle, Janet Bluck, Jack Warner, Harold Peters and Everett Beers.

Coal Boom For Eastern Ohio Seen

CADIZ, Ohio (AP)—A Consolidation Coal Co. official says the energy crisis could mean an economic boost for the coal mining areas in Eastern Ohio.

Robert Verbosky, public relations director for Consolidation Coal's Central Division, said however it may be some time before the gains materialize.

Eventually, Verrbosky said Monday, coal production will increase in Eastern Ohio and provide a financial "shot in the arm" for a large part of the state.

He urged that government air quality regulations be re-evaluated.

"Government and environmentalists will have to realize that high-sulfur coal is the fossil fuel reserve most plentiful in Ohio and other states," Verbosky said.

He said the government will have to initiate more research on gasification and liquefaction of coal.

Verbosky said also reasearchers and government agencies should look at desulfurization and sulfur emission converters for cleaning up coal emissions.

Boys Blamed For Fatal Derailment

WINDHAM, Ohio (AP)—Police say two small boys playing along the railroad tracks in the village of Windham were responsible for a freight train derailment which killed one man and caused damage estimated at more than $1 million.

Police said the two boys, aged 7 and 8, told their parents they opened the switch onto an industrial siding in this Portage County village, causing the 27-car freight train derailment Thursday.

The youngsters reportedly had seen an older boy rewarded a week earlier for locking the same switch for Erie Lackawanna railroad workers.

The two boys remained in the custody of their parents today while authorities considered what should be done.

The engineer, Raymond Wilcox, 39, of Meadville, Pa., died in the derailment, and another crewman, David Consider, 28, of Meadville, was injured seriously. Consider was listed in guarded condition Monday night at Robinson Memorial Hospital in Ravenna.

The parents brought the two boys in for a conference with investigators Saturday, police said.

Police were uncertain what action, if any, would be taken.

"What can you do with babies?" one official said. "We can't throw them in jail. There wasn't any malice intended. They'll probably get a good lecture, but I just don't know."

The FBI and railroad police also were investigating.

An Erie Lackawanna official said no decision has been made on whether charges will be filed.

Two Injured In Accident

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Lawrence Holt investigated a single-car accident 8:35 p.m. Monday on State Route 104.

Alfred Curtis Mack, 60, Columbus, was driving north on Route 104 when he went off the right side of the road losing control of his car.

Striking a guardrail, the auto went over a 25 foot embankment landing on its top.

Mack and a passenger, Sherry Lynn Mack, 5, Columbus, received bumps and bruises, but refused treatment.

Swank Raps Food Reserve Push

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — People who want to build a food reserve in this country are more concerned about rising prices than the possibility of a food shortage, delegates to the annual Ohio Farm Bureau meeting were told today.

800 To Be Laid Off During Plant Change

FAIRFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for the General Motors Corp. says more than 800 Fisher Body Division employees in Fairfield will be laid off next Monday so the plant can be converted to production of small and intermediate car bodies.

The spokesman said the layoff will last one to two weeks.

Man Given Prison Term For Slaying

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Norman Dakin, 34, Atlanta, Ga., was sentenced to 1-20 years in prison Monday after pleading guilty to first-degree manslaughter in the fatal shooting of a Middletown cafe owner.

Dakin, arrested in Houston, Texas, and returned here two months ago, was accused of killing John Duhamel in December, 1970.

C. William Swank, the organization's executive vice president, said efforts to build a food reserve "can only be market depressing and can only comfort an imaginary fear."

He said Americans never have been hungry and never will be "if they will only spend some of their earnings for food."

"A cheap food policy has never been an American right and should never become one," Swank declared.

Swank spoke at the opening session on the second day of the three-day convention.

Other speakers scheduled today included Ohio Senate President Pro Tem Theodore M. Gray, House Speaker A.G. Lancione and Lance Marston, director of the U.S. Interior Department's Office of Land Use and Water Planning.

On Wednesday, delegates will vote on 500 resolutions which will provide guidelines for the Farm Bureau during the coming year.

Swank told the delegates the federal government is holding discussions with leaders of other nations to determine their needs for American grain exports.

Swank said this was a "very positive step in the right direction," since it will permit American agriculture to plan accordingly.

Swank said passage of state Issue I by voters earlier this month was a

"mandate to the legislature to pass the right kind of laws."

The constitutional amendment calls for appraising farmland for taxation on its use value rather than its potential value.

Gov. John Gilligan, addressing the convention Monday, said passage of the constitutional amendment and defeat of the income tax repeal proposal last year "helped show the politicians that the people are perfectly capable of understanding what fair taxation really is."

The governor said the efforts of farmers and the 59,000-member Farm Bureau have helped to begin to make state government "respond again to the real needs and desires of the people."

State Rep. George Tablack, D-52 Campbell, told delegates Monday the House Ways and Means Committee will begin hearings this week on legislation resulting from passage of Issue I.

He said a great deal of testimony will have to be heard before the measure can be passed.

State Sen. Michael Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, said lawmakers will have to proceed with caution in order to guarantee that the final legislation is fair to the entire community. He said defining "farmland" could be a major problem.
